But he appears to a throne, I was brought up in the particular notions and traditions for a Prussian prince. In the family had ever cherished a doubt as to the suitability and fitness of these principles, for in youth all its male members had pursued exactly the same path.

Jack Dempsey has been hurried back to Paris to exchange a police dog, and not because Peggy Joyce telephoned to him.

Gen. Wu killed by artillery fire, says Gen. Chang's official report.

French papers charge Lloyd George with trickery over Russia's oil. Crisis for Genoa conference.

John Maynard Keynes shows how Russia's floods of paper money only made government need more money.

R. R. McCormick shows how "moral leadership" of America at Genoa will involve us in near east quarrels.

Bitter battles, raids, murders, and arson occur in many sections of Ireland as Dail Eireann, on De Valera's motion, takes steps to obtain truce.

Harold and Mathilde McCormick return to city, but both refuse to discuss prediction of former Republican nomination for president in 1924. Congratulatory telegrams Mr. Beveridge received during a number of Bull Moose leaders encouraged the followers of the former senator in the belief that his candidacy for the presidential nomination would receive widespread support among former Progressives and progressive Republicans.

Watson's Star Is Rising.

Indications are not wanting that whether Beveridge wins or loses in the election, Senator James E. Watson is destined to become the dominant figure in Republican politics in this state. He also is credited with presidential aspirations.

The ambition to control the Republican organization in this state, attributed to Senator Watson, was dwelt upon by numerous partisans of Senator New, who professed to find in the returns ample justification of the charge of "treachery" to New on the part of the Watson element. The New leaders complain that Watson did nothing for New beyond indorsing him halfheartedly and that the Watson crowd sacrificed New to gain votes for their state organization slate.

Beveridge carried all but two counties in the Sixth congressional district, in which Watson lives, and every county in the Ninth, the district of John Owen, Watson's political manager. Watson's county, Rush, gave Beveridge a handsome majority.

Woodrow Wilson advises John C. Higdon not to seek Democratic nomination for Senator from Missouri, as it will complicate the contest.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 3.—(Special)—The victory of Albert J. Beveridge, who was named Republican candidate for United States senator yesterday by a majority of 20,000 over Senator Harry S. New, foreshadows a realignment of forces in Indiana politics.

WILL CUTS OFF RELATIVES IN CHICAGO WITH $1

Syracuse, N. Y., May 3.—[Special]—

Chicago relatives of Miss Ednah Barnes Race, who died in that city last September, are cut off with $1 legacies and the remainder of the $2,000 left from a $175,000 estate she received seventeen years ago goes to Charles C. Truesdell, a local broker, by terms of a will filed for probate here today.

Miss Race's will states that Mr. Truesdell was like a father to her and was her advisor in transactions which materially aided her in the accumulation of property.

Miss Race received half the fortune of her grandfather, Jeremiah Barnes, many years ago. After receiving her inheritance she began to squander it. Hans Bader, a Swiss, who was extricated to his native land, won her friend ship and remained her of a large sum.

MISS RACE'S WILL STATES THAT MR. TRUESDELL WAS LIKE A FATHER TO HER AND WAS HER ADVISOR IN TRANSACTIONS WHICH MATERIALLY AIDED HER IN THE ACCUMULATION OF PROPERTY.

HANS BADER, A SWISS, WHO WAS EXTRICATED TO HIS NATIVE LAND, WON HER FRIENDSHIP AND REMAINED HER OF A LARGE SUM.

There was no definite commitment, no positive promise on the part of the nations here assembled, and in many respects the resolutions are almost identical with those adopted at Brussels two years ago, which have never been put into effect.

The second plenary-session was very dull compared with the first. It was marked by emphasis upon the necessity of settling international debts before financial stability could be re-established, and a declaration by M. Tchitcherin, head of the Russian delegation, that Russia could not approve those undertakings to be carried out by the league of nations, which Moscow did not recognize. Dr. Walther Rathenau of the German delegation made a speech pleading for adjustment of the reparations problem.

The finance report contained nineteen articles, the main recommendations being:

Return of stability of currency.

A meeting in the near future of big central banks.

Re-establishment of the gold basis, Balance budget.

Sir Laming Worthington Evans, chairman of the finance commission, said "without American cooperation the proposals cannot be carried out."

Tchitcherin Makes Speech.

As usual there was a stir of interest when M. Tchitcherin took the floor. He began by saying the voting on the report was the first formal international action of the soviet republics, and therefore, he attached great importance to it.

He said the Russians had felt that because of the exclusion of the separation question little could be accomplished by the finance commission in the work in which, however, the Russians had earnestly cooperated. Then he began to play the bull in the china shop. The recommendation that the governments shall not influence exchange transactions, he said, Moscow could not accept, because it had a monopoly of all foreign transactions. As for the execution of the resolutions made by the league of nations he said Russia made no reservations because she did not recognize the existence of the league.

The recommendations against government loans was disapproved by the Russian foreign minister, who insisted that Moscow wanted loans from government to government.

SIR JAMES BARRIE AND GEN. HAIG HEAD UNIVERSITY

GLASGOW, May 3.—[By the Associated Press.] Field Marshal Haig and Sir James M. Barrie today were formally installed respectively as chancellor and rector of St. Andrew's university. Honorary degrees were bestowed on Ellen Terry, Thomas Hardy, John Galsworthy, and others.

Sir James M. Barrie, in delivering his inaugural address, which he described as his first and last public speech, chose the inculcation of courage in youth as his theme. He read, as an example, a letter written to him by Capt. Robert F. Scott, commander of the British antarctic expedition in 1902-04, found in the explorer's tent in the Antarctic after his tragic death there.

"We are pegging out in a very comfortable spot," said the massive, "hopping this letter may be found and sent to you. I write you a word of farewell. I want you to think well of me and my end. Good-bye. I am not at all afraid of the end, but it is sad to miss many a friend and comrade who have perished for the future. In our long marches we are in a desperate state—feet frozen, etc.; no fuel, and a long way from food. But it would do your heart good to be in our tent to hear our songs and our cheery conversation."

'Movie' Extra Wins an Award to $20,000,000

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—[Special.]—Henry Klas Van Heel, an "extra" in a movie picture company here, was honored as Thomas James Campbell of St. Louis, in San Diego, April 18, according to information which became public tonight.

Van Heel who gave his age as 32, gave his address as New York. Mr. Campbell was left $20,000,000 by her husband, who was a St. Louis traction magnate. She gave her age as 48.

BITTER FIGHTS RAGE IN IRELAND; TRUCE SOUGHT

De Valera Takes Lead to Halt Civil War.

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News.]

DUBLIN, May 3.—The fighting between the factions of the Irish republican army is growing more bitter and to complicate the situation raiding along the northern border has been resumed.

One report from Kilkenny that the nationalists had captured in the fighting between the factions there, the Dail Eireann today adopted a motion made by Eamon de Valera urging both sides to stop fighting at once. A committee of ten was appointed to arrange an immediate truce and to try to unite the army.

Sixteen of a party of irregulars said to have been attempting to destroy a railroad bridge near Kilkenny, are reported to have been killed or wounded. The party was surprised by a detachment of loyal troops in an armored car, who opened fire on the irregulars.

Loyalists Capture Castle.

Ormonde castle, the last building held in Kilkenny by the republican extremists, was stormed and captured today by loyal forces under Col. Prouty, who was an officer in the American army in the world war. Seven were wounded in the attack.

The police barracks at Mullingar, held by irregulars, was blown up in an attack by loyalists tonight. Several buildings are burning.

Irregulars invaded Lismore. They were armed with one piece of artillery and two punt guns, mounted on trucks. The punt guns, which are used in duck hunting, fire a charge of slugs and shot weighing two pounds. The irregulars are billeted in the Arms hotel, the courthouse, the postoffice, the provisional bank and in residence commanding the entrances to the city. The loyal force holds the workshop.

Irregulars occupied the home in Ballinasloe of Lord Ashtown, who received a letter from the divisional commander of the army executive that his residence was needed for Catholic refugees from Belfast. The letter said the property of Southern Unionists and Free Masons will be confiscated.

Fight and Murder on Border.

The border situation has again become very serious. Scores of shots were fired through the windows of the home of a constable at Coal island, County Tyrone, who was a member of the royal constabulary. The constable escaped, but in the struggle with the rebels was severely wounded. The constable was ambushed and Sergeant J. Cardwell was killed.

Radicals Urge Army Peace.

The five influential army officers who have shifted their support from the republic to the treaty, and who on Saturday issued a public statement on their efforts to get the army to enter the peace negotiations, have transferred their views to the Dail Eireann.

They express their reluctance to abandon the republic, but assert in their opinion civil war could only be averted by upholding the provisional government.

First Cause Heavy Losses.

Republican marauders are reported to have inflicted thousands of dollars worth of damages by incendiary fires in the Limavady, County Londonderry, district.

Irregulars are becoming more active in County Donegal, raiding a hotel at Bundoran for bedding and occupying the Maguire hall at Ramboe. Loyalty troops commanded by the Monaghan hall at Lifford. The Orange hall at Ballyshannon, Donegal, was burned.

The agrarian trouble in County Clare has reached a point where the commandants for the County Clare

RENTS AT THIS HOUSE WILL NOT BE INCREASED

The thirty-eight tenants and the owners of the Parkside apartments, 5410 to 5418 W. 111th street, Chicago, have negotiated a rental agreement whereby tenants are given the opportunity of signing leases for six months after May 1.

The agreement was reached after the tenants, under the chairmanship of B. Kornblith, had held several meetings relative to proposed increases in rents.

The compromise was effected at a meeting Tuesday between tenants and Charles Levy, owner of the building, with his agents, Draper & Kramer.

The cattle owners in County Clare have been appealing to the civil courts for protection from the "moonlighters," as the cattle drivers are called, and when none was forthcoming, they appealed to the Irish republican army.

The army refrained from interfering, owing to conditions in general throughout the area, but when scores of animals driven away were left to starve the troupe was ambushed and Sergeant J. Cardwell was killed.

Two Catholics, Messrs. Hogan, a postman, and Lavelle, a chemist, were murdered on a road near Coal island, a short time later. It is believed the crime was a reprisal for the killing of the constable.

Irish republican raiders rushed the Bellagh barracks in County Londonderry, where they killed a sergeant and wounded three. Piercings followed. Barracks at Draperstown and Desertmartin were also attacked.

Minister of Defenses Mulcahy asserted that he had attempted last night to arrange a truce.

U. S. MUST MIX IN NEAR EAST CHAOS IF IT VISITS GENOA

Entanglements Inevitable, McCormick Says.

BY ROBERT R. MCGOWICK.

[Co-editor of the Chicago Tribune.]

If America goes to Genoa to undertake the moral leadership of Europe she must assume that of western Asia as well. Since the war five peoples of Europe have entered Asia with heavy artillery and are hanging on with machine guns and wire entanglements. I am far from saying that our actions are wrong.

The Turks make good soldiers in the ranks and enforce the prohibition law where they are in power, but they have no other gift of government or of civilization. Without French merchants, English sailors, Greek merchants, etc., Turkey would be in the condition of Mexico at the end of the Carranza-Wilson régime.

The difficulty in Asia Minor is not European penetration, but the conflict of the European promoters. Greece thinks she has the greatest call on Asia Minor. There are millions of Greeks in the Turkish seacoast and trading cities. There is a well established Greek empire.

Italy also has nations, a trade, and the Roman past which inspire her. She also has a military strength, which Greece has not. To these incentives are added a greater one. Italy has a fast increasing population which her homeland cannot support. Further, more than a beautiful country is fatally deficient in the raw materials of modern industry. Italy is looking for lands where her sons may go and develop her imperium into a well rounded empire. Italy has succeeded Germany as the country seeking a place in the sun.

France has been concerned with eastern affairs since the Crusades. All the British blockades of the eighteenth century were her handiwork. She is, however, the formal champion of the Catholic church in the land of Islam, and, finally, she has found the means of ruling and living among Mohammedan peoples far beyond other western races.

Key to England's Interest.

England's interests lie in controlling the trade routes to India by the Suez canal and by rail, in her position as the world's greatest trading country, in her desire to control the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles to coerce and dominate Turkey, and, finally, in obtaining oil concessions, which British seafarers know has become the key to ocean dominance.

And then come the Zionists, wishing to reestablish the kingdom of Israel in its ancient home. Zion and England are in accord. Zion needs the protection of British arms and Britain wants a buffer state between the Suez canal and Turkish or Russian power; also as an offset to the French influence with the Mohammedans and the British with the Hindus.

At the present moment the Greek government is willing to agree to the evacuation of Smyrna, while the Greeks in that locality are organizing to hold their territory with their own strength.

We are to attempt moral leadership in the near east; it will be necessary to raise a preliminary army of 500,000 men and reopen our ammunition factories.

What It Means to U. S.

If America had accepted the mandate of Armenia we would have had an army surrounded by Bolsheviks and Turks, and the English were driven out of the Caucasus.

In the last few months there has been a great revival of Mohammedanism, caused by the invasion of alien armies into Turkey. The Turks have stopped the Greek advance and are their Soviet dictators.

credited in European capitals with the power to drive the Greeks into the sea. Help for the Greeks is not forthcoming, English forces being entirely occupied in the Balkans. The Greeks are organizing to hold their territory with their own strength.

URGE COMPANIES TO TAKE STAND FOR SUBWAYS

Meeting Today Vital, Say Aldermen.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

"Everybody in Chicago wants rapid transit," said Alderman U. S. Schwartz, chairman of the council's local transportation committee. "He was disappointed at the committee session to learn that President Henry A. of the surface lines and Samuel Hamilton, head of the board of directors of the elevated roads, have been invited to be present. Upon this meeting depends. If the companies are willing to talk business in definite terms, the city may be on the road to success. If the transportation program is delayed until after the next primary election."

Up to the Companies.

"It is high time that the utilities," said the alderman, "show their responsibilities are not as approximate as decisive and definite standards. A regard for the farepayers is essential as concern for the wages of capital. A detriment to the city and our transportation is more than a detriment to the companies; it is the long run, which they will admit is a general proposition. Then, what remains—except a minor temporary advantage here or there—can there be the indifference on the part of the companies?"

"We have invited them to be present at the meeting tomorrow. We want them to urge them. We want them to talk cold turkey."

Surface Lines Files Brief. The surface lines filed their brief yesterday in the federal court supporting their plea for an injunction against the order of the Illinois commerce commission reducing the car fare from $6 to 6 cents.

The brief asserts that the expenses of the companies total 6,191 cents out of each 6 cent fare and that a 6 cent fare would result in a loss to the Chicago Rail-road company to meet the interest on outstanding obligations. Consequently it is charged that the commission's order on its face is confiscatory.

CROWE PRESSES CHARGES AGAINST LABOR LAWYERS

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe last night appeared before the grievance committee of the Chicago Bar association to press charges made by him against Attorneys George Guenther, Joseph C. Willner, and William W. O'Brien.

The exact nature of the charges has not been made public, but it is believed they relate to recent labor cases in which the attorneys have taken part. Attorney Guenther was counsel for Thomas Walsh in his trial for the murder of Adolph George Jr., and Mr. Willner was a witness for the defense in the same case.

Attorney O'Brien was of counsel for William Quisenberry in his first trial, and is an attorney for the defense in the present trial of the labor leader.

In other words, the board of education presumably bought certain lots and houses, but actually acquired possession of the land only.

Board Gets No Rent. H. W. Kaup, neighbor of Vice President Severinghaus, it is said, has collected approximately $10,000 for the dwellings since September, 1920. At Tuesday's special board meeting, called with a view to exonerating certain trustees who might be involved, Attorney Bither, under fire directed by Trustee Hart Hanson, admitted the board never has received so much as one penny of this $10,000.

Attorney O'Brien stated, "Attorney Hamilton's discovery as to the records showed not only the change in the wording of the jury's verdict but also that the original petition in the condemnation proceedings had been tampered with."

HEIR TO THRONE HAS HANDICAPS, PRINCE RELATES

Memoirs Say He Rebelled—High Praise for Wife.

close to the castle awaited Bismarck at the head of the Halberstadt cavalcade, whose chief the aged prince had been appointed. I had the honor of accompanying the old gentleman in his carriage. In a truly paternal manner he pointed out to me all the beauties of the Friedensruh park. My father delivered very fine speech and presented the prince with a sumptuously wrought sword of honor. The prince repaid with a few pregnant words.

Then we returned to the castle. I noticed that the prince was very weary and fatigued; the prolonged standing had doubtless put too great a strain upon him. His countenance was quiet and heavy, and finally he tried to open the tight collar of his uniform, but failed. Almost startled by my own boldness, I bent over him and undid it; then he pressed my hand and nodded gratefully.

Learn a Trade.

In acquiescence with my special wish, I was permitted to apprentice myself to a master turner. Among the Hohenzollerns it is customary for every prince to learn a trade. In general, of course, such princely apprenticeship must not be regarded too seriously, though it is indeed a valuable symbol—and more genuine.

Now while I will not assert that I could make my way in the world with my turner's craft, I can say with truth that I have practiced it with pleasure again, and that master and apprentice took the matter quite seriously. My good master kept me hard at it, and when I went to England, and there those happy in the atmosphere of the joiner's workshop, and in his simple, cleanly household.

In the year 1887 an event happened which I must recall here, as it caught hold of my young imagination with lively effect. It was my first son trip. The aged Queen Victoria was to celebrate the jubilee of her reign. My parents went to England to take part in the festivity and took me with them.

His First Visit to England.

And if my youthfulness rendered me unable to appreciate the symbolism of the royal power embodied in the picture, it nevertheless abashed with awe the astounding complaisance of what it saw and forever guarded me from underestimating the significance of the British empire.

Withal, I felt the vexation of having continually to take into consideration my position as prince. In everything that I undertook I was surrounded by peers who—with the best intentions, no doubt—but much to my annoyance—rehearsed, again and again, their two little maxims: "Your

DANISH FESTIVAL TO FEATURE DRUID MUSICAL DEVICE

Playing of the lur, a wind instrument of wood and metal, used in northern Europe in the days of Druids before civilization had dawned in the world, will be an unusual feature at the Danish song festival to be held at Orchestra Hall Friday and Saturday. Miss Minna Elsie Michallowa of Mecklenburg, was betrothed to Cecile, Duchess of Mecklenburg. Not quite 18 years of age, she was in the first blush of youth and full of gayety and joyousness. The years of her childhood, in the society of her somewhat self-willed but loving and beautiful mother, had been replete with happiness.

imperial highness must do not?" and "your imperial highness must do this." Any attempt to repulse these admonitions or to introduce the dolours and resistances of a free being into this frosty formalism met with a lack of understanding. It was, therefore, best to let people talk and to do what seemed most simple and natural.

Interjects a Diary.

The former czarina prince evidently interjects here excerpts from his diary, written in 1919, the apparent object being to contrast his life at court with that in Holland—Ed.

"June, 1919.

I wrote letters first to the czarina after breakfast, two hours at the arrival in the smithy. Luit told me that an American had offered 25 guilders for a horsehair that I had forged. Might he give him one? These people are, after all, innately ready to inspire megalomania into the likes of us—when we sit on a grassy island far from their maddening crowd.

At one time they used to pick up my signature and write it, placing it in a box that has been under my hammer.

A snob offers a sum that would help a poor man out of his misery in the old homeland. It is not surprising to me that many a one, under the influence of this cult, has become what he is. No, we are not always the sole scoundrels!

I left Luit and went down to the sea, stripped, and plunged in. How that was the wretchedness out of a life for a while and makes you forget the whole thing!

"About now I told my dear Kummer, who has been with me for some time, the story of the American. He is on fire with enthusiasm. 'Twenty-four guilders, at the present rate of exchange! I'd keep on making horses for 'em the whole day.'

"After dinner looked through the notes of the battles at Verdun and at Stenay. At 4 o'clock in the morning.

worked at the subject for the book. Took a walk with Kummer.

"And now it is evening again.

"Another day passed. How long will it be now?

BERLIN JOINS IN APPEAL TO KEEP YANKS ON RHINE

Washington Delays Order for Early Retirement.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special]—Germany and the European allies have appealed to the United States not to withdraw all the American troops from the Rhine army of occupation by July 1, as directed by the President.

Germany is just as insistent as the Allies that a contingent of American troops be kept on the Rhine. They are not asking for a large number to remain, but they are insistent in their desire that the American flag and an American military force be kept on the Rhine as long as conditions in Europe are unsettled.

Although President Harding has announced no decision in the matter nor directed Secretary Hughes to make any to any of the government, it is regarded as very likely that a small garrison of American troops will be permitted to remain at Coblenz if conditions in Europe on July 1 remain as chaotic as they now appear.

Change Orders to Leave.

Strength is given to this conclusion by the fact that part of the 5th infantry, which was to have sailed soon for the United States, has been held back at Coblenz. Two battalions of this regiment which were to have sailed on June 10, have been ordered to remain at least until June 17. Whether this latter sailing date will be changed cannot be seen.

These facts were divulged following action by Senator Harris (Ga.) in announcing receipt of a letter from Col. Campbell King of the war plans division of the army stating that on account of unforeseen circumstances the arrival of the 5th infantry at Savannah, Ga., would be delayed.

Petitions for the troops to remain have come from all the nations interested in the question of German occupation. There is apparently a unanimous opinion that the influence of the American forces is a wholesome one, tending greatly to stabilize conditions and to lessen friction between the various elements involved. Maj. Gen. Henry A. Allen, commanding, is especially commended.

U. S. Not Much Interested.

It is understood that a decision has been made by the administration, but the time is not deemed opportune for announcing that decision. It is also felt that there is no particular reason why the United States should decide one way or another, inasmuch as its position is purely that of a neutral and impartial body. This government under no circumstances either to Germany or to the allies to maintain its troops on the Rhine for any certain period.

The number of American troops in Germany now numbers less than 2,000, and figures not being available at the war department.

The above photos show the offices of the Rome bureau of The Tribune and its allied American newspapers. They were just recently established in the Eternal City.

The bureau is on the first floor of the Excelsior hotel in Rome, located on the Pincian hill at the entrance of the Pincio garden, and in the center of the fashionable American quarter of the Italian capital.

American visitors in Rome will find American newspapers on file, and they can obtain information from Americans in charge of the bureau.

G. O. P. IS DISAPPOINTED

Washington, D. C., May 3.—The defeat of Senator New (Ind.) was received with frank disappointment in administration circles and among the "regulars" in the senate.

Republican leaders as a rule refrained from comment on the outcome of the primary, while Democrats hailed her victory.

Senator Watson (Ind.) vigorously denied reports that he had secretly "knifed" Senator New. He characterized such reports a "sheer nonsense."

The Republican senatorial committee, through its chairman, Senator McCormick (Ill.), said in a formal statement that "Albert J. Beveridge has served twelve years in the senate of the United States with great distinction and will return to resume that service." The committee added that it would "support energetically" the nomination of the party selected in the Indiana primary.

"The Republican senatorial committee, which takes no part whatever in pre-primary or pre-convention contests," the statement continued, "assures a united Republican party in Indiana of its wholehearted cooperation in the forthcoming campaign."

Senator New's defeat revived old reports that he would enter the cabinet, either as postmaster general or as secretary of war.

Methodist Pastor Calls
Garden of Eden a 'Myth'

Columbus, O., May 3.—Preservation of Christianity demands a "religious house cleaning," the Rev. B. D. Evans of the Franklin Park Methodist Episcopal church, declared in an address here tonight in which he characterized the story of the Garden of Eden as a "fairy tale," and said there is insufficient evidence to support the teaching of the virgin birth of Christ.

The speaker was given great applause when he said that the eighteenth amendment "never would have been put over if we had had congressmen with backbone and congressmen who stayed awake."

"I have here a letter from one New York senator which shows he still believes in the constitution of the United States—James W. Wadsworth."

GOTHAM MASSES CHEER FLAYING OF VOLSTEAD ACT

Noted Men Join Meeting
Sponsored by Labor.

New York, May 3.—Samuel Gompers, veteran president of the American Federation of Labor, speaking tonight to a crowd that jammed Madison Square Garden in a mass meeting called by the New York branch of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said that labor must make the fight now, and we will not stop fighting until the rights of the people have been restored to them.

He was cheered by crowds both inside and outside the big pavilion, for those who could not get into the hall heard the various speakers through voice amplifiers. The meeting was largely attended, not only representatives of more than thirty labor organizations being present but many men prominent in the city's business and financial circles occupying places on the stage. A large part of the audience was composed of women.

Prominent persons in the audience included Seth Low, Stuyvesant Fish, Kermit Roosevelt, and Archibald Roosevelt.

Against Sumptuary Laws.

"I wish the federation I represent," Mr. Gompers said, "are in favor of beer and light wines and against any attempt to enforce sumptuary laws aimed at personal liberty. Temperance was the rule of the great mass of organized labor, but the prohibitionists and the so-called anti-saloon leaguers have done more to undermine the morality and temperance of the workingman than any other agency I know."

"I have traveled all over the United States before prohibition, including its well-tempered dry territories, and today as I pass through these sections I have found more drunkenness than ever before."

"There are no stronger or more powerful supporters of the Volstead act than the distillers and bootleggers," Mr. Gompers declared to the accompaniment of vociferous applause.

Congressmen Warned.

James P. Holland, president of the State Federation of Labor, in an address declared that if the representatives in congress from New York did not listen to the demands of the people "others would be put in who would."

The speaker was given great applause when he said that the eighteenth amendment "never would have been put over if we had had congressmen with backbone and congressmen who stayed awake."

"I have here a letter from one New York senator which shows he still believes in the constitution of the United States—James W. Wadsworth."

"Well, what about Calder?" one of the audience inquired.

"You people who live in Brooklyn can take care of Calder," was the reply.

Wadsworth Fears Contempt of Law.

Senator Wadsworth's letter said:

"Frankly, I think we made a terrible mistake when we inserted a sumptuary law of this kind in the constitution of the United States. This was a fundamental error. Then we made another mistake when we passed an enforcement act so severe in its provisions that it is proving impossible of enforcement. It is entirely clear that great masses of people are holding this in disrespect; violations are going on at wholesale. Corruption is spreading like wildfire, is the order of the day. It extends into every element of the population; leads to disrespect, and indeed contempt for law and the orderly conduct of government."

This is the only suggestion thus far made as to the agenda.

FLOOD OF MONEY ONLY DIGS NEW GAPS IN RUSSIA

Keynes Shows How Vast Paper Issues Fail.

BY JOHN MAYNARD KEYNES
[Copyright: 1922; By the Press World.]

GENOA, May 2—I am able to supplement my previous article on Russian finances by some further information, which has been supplied by M. Prokofjevski, a member of the collegium of the commissariat of finance, and chief financial expert on the Russian delegation to Genoa.

The following table, which includes figures for the issue of paper money since the beginning of last December, gives the whole position succinctly. As before, a gold ruble signified not quantity of gold, but the internal purchasing power of gold rubles in 1918. Perhaps this table can claim the distinction of giving the first monetary statistics which have ever been expressed in units of trillions:

Notes outstanding (in trillions of rubles)	December, 1921, 5,000,000,000,000
January, 1922, 12,000,000,000,000
February, 1922, 26,000,000,000,000
March, 1922, 48,000,000,000,000
April, 1922, 71,000,000,000,000

Notes issued during month (in trillions of rubles)

December, 1921, 5,000,000,000,000

January, 1922, 12,000,000,000,000

February, 1922, 12,000,000,000,000

March, 1922, 23,000,000,000,000

April, 1922, 23,000,000,000,000

Percentages of depreciation during months:

December, 1921, 57%; January, 1922, 147%

February, 1922, 142%; March, 1922, 96%

Water Flood Shakes Confidence.

The inflation of the currency is six and one-half times the previous volume within four months has been accompanied by a fall in the value of the paper ruble to one-twentieth.

Thus enormous issues of paper money have shaken confidence to such an extent that depreciation has proceeded three times as fast as inflation.

The result is that the note issue—namely, about $2,000,000,000 on April 1, was quite insufficient for the needs of the country.

Consequently outside of the towns, barter still persists, much of the revenue is collected in kind and we have the paradox of the greatest volume of trade ever known leading to the insufficiency of money. During the first ten days of April, which is the latest date for which a figure is yet available, the value of the currency depreciated a further 17 per cent. Russian experts argue that provided they can moderate the issues of currency, as to which they express a praiseworthy determination, the gathering of the newest will be accompanied by some recovery in the value of the paper ruble.

How Works in Taxes.

One other set of figures is of great interest, at any rate to students of currency. By issues of paper money the state is able to levy surreptitiously taxation on its subjects and thus obtain command of real resources. But how far can this process be carried before it repeats itself? In Russia the experiment has been pushed to the last extreme, and it is instructive to inquire what of real resources the soviet government has been able to extract from first to last by this instrument of taxation.

If the fresh note issues of each period be translated into terms of their pre-war ruble purchasing power at the date of each issue, I am informed that the purchasing power thus secured by

They FRANCES DUMMER will live in the castle formerly occupied by the Austrian house of Hapsburg. Miss Dummer is a granddaughter of the late George Sturgis, banker.

In either case, the soviet ruble would have a fluctuating market value in terms of the stable bank ruble. But the doctrine of the second school opens the way to gradual deterioration of the bank ruble along the same course as the soviet ruble, and it appears evident to outside observers that the strict doctrine of the first school should not be abandoned.

Bourgeois More Clever.

How much cleverer is the moderation of the bourgeois governments. How much more successfully they employ this surreptitious instrument of taxation! During the same period the governments of France and Germany are using the same methods larger sums than the soviet government.

Not issued at present are not bank notes but treasury notes. With the return to monetary economy, the bolshovists have instituted a new state bank, the primary function of which

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray-streaked and faded hair is guaranteed to turn it to black again using it to keep their hair a good even color, which is quite sensible, as we all live longer when our hair appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the same task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, made by the use of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very effective, especially when it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with water, then thoroughly wet your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears. This Sage and Sulphur Compound is that besides beautifying the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

Wyeth Chemical Co., New York

is to deal with foreign exchange and finance imports and exports.

It is proposed that this bank issue a new note which should be cashable for foreign currency at a more or less fixed rate by holders who have a legitimate trade purpose for such currency. If such encashability is to be maintained, everything depends on the notes against which the notes are to be issued. On this point there are two schools of thought in Moscow.

Would Inspire Gain of Wealth.

One school holds the notes should be convertible against gold or foreign currency arising out of the export of goods and delivery of goods actually available for export.

The other school holds the bank should also issue small denomination notes in exchange for soviet treasury notes at a fluctuating rate dependent on the purchasing power of the latter in terms of gold rubles from time to time.

The object of the second school is to provide a reliable store of value within the country itself, a normal function of money which the soviet note admittedly supplies no longer, and so stimulate the usual instincts of individuals towards the acquisition of a little wealth. It is interesting that the bolshovists should come to recognize the necessity for this incentive.

See Solution in State Bank.

In either case, the soviet ruble would have a fluctuating market value in terms of the stable bank ruble. But the doctrine of the second school opens the way to gradual deterioration of the bank ruble along the same course as the soviet ruble, and it appears evident to outside observers that the strict doctrine of the first school should be rigorously maintained, at least for some time to come.

If only the bank can be founded on sound lines, it seems to point the way to suitable machinery for employing foreign credits to the best advantage.

Suppose, for example the bank were to establish a reserve fund in London, of which half were furnished out of its own resources and half out of credit from the British treasury, then issuing drafts against the fund could be done by letters approved by the Bank of Russia, with which to pay English exporters approved by a joint committee of the bank and the British board of trade of London, and if the proceeds of Russian exports were paid by the bank into this reserve it could form a revolving fund on the lines of gold exchange standard.

Would Develop Confidence.

On the other hand, if the bank is established thus, individual mutual confidence would grow up if it was deserved, and trade might gradually develop on the only possible permanent basis—namely: that of personal confidence between individuals and corporations in the two countries.

But no one at Genoa, so far as I can discover, is interested in practical details of this kind. The whole discussion is concentrated on the question of whether, in spite of war and revolution and the complete bouleversement of the existing order, a pretense cannot be patched up for the benefit of foreign creditors that nothing has changed.

Discussions at Genoa have no value, and are remote from the realities.

Russia can pay nothing now, and, for the moment, or for a short time, private investors are not so foolish that they are going to lend her in the near future any considerable sums.

GEN. WU KILLED BY CANNON FIRE, CHANG REPORTS

Battle Swings Closer to Tientsin.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TIENTSIN, May 3.—Gen. Chang Tsao Lin's headquarters gave out the following communiqué today:

"Gen. Wu Pei Fu was killed at Changting by artillery fire of the second division. Chang Tsao Ling awards the division $500,000 and orders an advance all along the line."

Communiqué report the arrival and departure of two Chinese cruisers at Chefoo under Admiral Saybo, who hopes to cut Gen. Chang's communications in the river.

The Americans in Tientsin have organized and will constitute a section under the British volunteer corps for the protection of the concessions.

Strauss with Schurman.

Admiral Strauss reached Peking to confer with Dr. Schurman, the American minister. Three Japanese torpedo boats have reached Tientsin, making six foreign warships guarding the French and British concessions.

Heavy troop movements continue from Mukden, some units detraining at a point three miles north of the Tientsin main station. Others are proceeding along the Fukien railway where the heavier movement is being made. Gen. Chang also is detaining his troops, ferrying the river, and marching his troops along the canal to Machang. His force there will probably be sufficient to prevent a drastic movement directed from Mukden.

Drive on Tientsin.

Indications are that Gen. Wu is engaging his real attack on Tientsin.

It is impossible to obtain Gen. Wu's reports, but troop movements indicate that he is continuing to bring a large force along the line which Gen. Chang has taken. Many wounded from Chang's army have reached Tientsin.

Gen. Wu disarmed his 25th division after taking it into action for abandoning Machang and sent the 3d division in trying the case. The term when all the cases are scheduled for trial opens

Monday, June 5.

WILSON ADVISES MISSOURIAN NOT TO BALL UP RACE

St. Louis, Mo., May 3.—A letter from former President Wilson advising him "not to complicate the contest in Missouri" by becoming a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator has been received by John C. Higdon, a local lawyer, it was learned today.

United States Senator Reed and Breckinridge Long, third assistant secretary of state in the Wilson administration, are the only ones in the race so far, and Wilson in a recent letter to the St. Louis Daily Republic said Reed as "incapable of sustained allegiance to any person or cause."

Higdon was a candidate for the senatorial nomination two years ago and was defeated by Long, who was defeated by Senator Speicher, Republican.

Higdon recently wrote Mr. Wilson, asking his advice before announcing his candidacy, stating that when Long defeated him two years ago he was a "poor man," but now had "lots of money" to conduct a campaign.

Higdon pledged his allegiance to the ### BISHOP WILLIAM LAWRENCE.

Boston, Mass., May 3.—Bishop William Lawrence of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts in his annual report to the diocesan convention today asked whether it was not time to recognize the right of every citizen who did not believe in complete prohibition to have it, and in public.

"Hundreds of thousands of working men who found solace and command after the day's work in what they felt to be their innocent glass of beer had it snatched from them," the bishop said, "and thousands of reputable citizens found their personal liberties and domestic happiness broken in upon.

"Surely it is competent for every citizen to speak, work, and do everything consistent with the law to have a law either amended or rescinded."

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 3.—[By the Associated Press]—District Judge Bozarth this afternoon postponed until the opening of the June term of court the arraignment of Gov. Robertson and fourteen others indicted in connection with state bank failures in the county. This action was taken after the court had overruled a motion by attorneys for John H. Rebeld, one of the defendants, to disqualify Judge Bozarth in trying the case. The term when all the cases are scheduled for trial opens Monday, June 5.

Mr. Wilson's reply, under date of May 1, follows:

"When my advice is seriously asked, as it is by you in your letter of April 27, I feel it is my duty to tell the truth and candor. My advice, therefore, is not to complicate the contest in Missouri by becoming a candidate for the nomination for the senate.

MISSOURIAN WHO GOT LOWDEN COIN GIVEN AN OFFICE

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special]—President Harding today sent to the Senate the nomination of Nat Goldstein to be collector of internal revenue at St. Louis.

Goldstein was one of the Missouri delegates to the Republican national convention in 1920 who admitted receiving $2,500 each from Frank O. Lowden's managers.

The disclosure of the payments of these sums to Missouri delegates created a sensation on the eve of the Chicago convention, which it generally believed to have killed off the Lowden boom for the presidency.

KEEPING A ROSY COMPLEXION

And a Clear Smooth Skin. What Millions of Women Do.

Medical science says that each one of the billions of red blood corpuscles in your blood stream must have iron or your blood becomes pale, thin and watery. When you lack iron, you also lose their color, then your stomach, kidneys, liver and heart become weak, easily fatigued. Your muscles are weak, easily fatigued. Poisons may be absorbed into your system and your skin thereby becomes pale and watery. Dark circles may appear under your eyes, your cheek and facial muscles are tired, skin is dull and lifeless, and you actually look older than you really are. To say the least, the brightness of your youth is gone.

It is estimated that at least one woman out of every three women lacks 100% iron in her blood and in many cases in addition to the loss of their beauty, they become weak, nervous, irritable, and may even become hysterical, or be subject to the blues, or suffer the terrible terrors of nerve exhaustion.

Natural Iron is guaranteed in every case to furnish your body with true red blood food which your blood must have for you to be strong, healthy and vital. Natural Iron is the only thing that puts the color in your cheeks, helps clear up your skin and gives the ready glow of health to your face. It has been used by millions of women. Get a bottle today, take it for two weeks, and see the thousands who have obtained most surprising strength and energy from the use of Natural Iron. The manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

THE SCHOOL BOARD NEEDS THE STATE'S ATTORNEY

The Chicago board of education is and has been for years a peculiar revelation of incapacity for municipal administration. It would be rational to believe that no matter how much inexpertness or maladministration a community permitted from time to time in other functions of government it would be sensitive on the score of its schools.

It would be reasonable to believe that here the citizens would draw a deadline and say that sine against the schools, which are sins against the homes and against citizenship, would be punished severely. Sometimes politics is taught that there are deadlines and it does not cross over them.

Chicago seemingly has failed to give the schools such protection. It might be expected, as the natural consequence of community sentiment, that the administration of the schools would attract the services of the most intelligent and conscientious men and women. The Chicago board of education at its best resembles a collection of disorderly juveniles and at its worst something inviting the attention of the state's attorney.

It invites attention now. Charges of misapplication and misuse of school money are made by some trustees, by school teachers, and by other citizens who say they have information. The dominant members of the board handle the situation with customary big rules, adjournments of meetings, whitewashing inquiries, etc.

The board is charged with buying its supplies in a manner which needs explanation. It is charged with not buying textbooks after it had been given the money for them. It is charged with serious irregularities in the purchase of land for school sites.

Some of the accusations are cause for prosecution if there is evidence to support them. The state's attorney has a chance to clear the situation up. The board is incapable of investigating itself. It has a defensive organization able to protect itself, but that would not avail against a thorough grand jury inquiry.

It is a matter of utmost city concern. It is charged that thousands of children are being denied proper education because of the mismanagement of school affairs. The board may be nothing more than a congenitally disorderly body incapable of managing any public affairs, even if insignificant and unimportant. If it is worse than that State's Attorney Crowe is equipped to find it out.

OUR COURSE IN HAITI.

Four and twenty lawyers belonging to a "Foreign Policy" association have presented the secretary of state with a pronouncement declaring that "Sesame by the United States of the republic of Haiti was in violation of our constitution, our treaties, and of international law." They want "self-government" restored to the Haitian "people" and a withdrawal of such military forces as we have in the island.

The notion that we can "restore" self-government to the people of Haiti is a quaint one and quite characteristic of a certain familiar variety of world-reforming groups. The trouble with their proposition is that we cannot restore what has never existed; much less can we restore what never existed to some one who has never been. There has been a series of dictatorships and oligarchies flourishing under the title of republic. There are inhabitants of Haiti, a race dwelling in Haiti. But there has been nothing which deserves the name of self-government and there is no people in the sense in which that word is used in our political philosophy.

We assume that the Foreign Policy association is an assemblage of high minded individuals who purpose to keep a watchful eye upon the doings of our government in foreign affairs. Doubtless it is desirable that our foreign affairs should be given disinterested surveillance, since there is no activity of government that is carried on with so little check from public opinion. But a self-appointed censorship that bugs itself in phrases and formulas will be a nuisance and not a safeguard. Comfortable gentlemen sitting in offices and libraries at home may enjoy a confidence in their theories and judgments which is not justified. It is easy to criticize in the absence of responsibility for conditions or results; to tell the men on the job how they ought to have acted, with no proper consideration of the concrete facts and forces confronting them; to enunciate high sounding principles with little appreciation of counter claims and the qualifications of reality in application.

The United States has interests in the Caribbean which we trust our successive governments will conserve by such practical measures as may be necessary, and the control of the Haitian situation is one of those interests. That control, whatever its form, will always be resisted by the Haitian politicians whose exploitation of what the protesting lawyers call the Haitian "people" would be unchecked without it. But it is our concern to deal effectively with conditions so far as they affect our peace and welfare, and if precedent is needed we shall make it.

A special committee of the senate after a visit to Haiti had made a report upon conditions there which will serve as a sufficient basis for correction of our action in that island. Secretary Hughes assures the excited protestants that the government is considering whatever is essential to the tranquillity and well-being of the people of Haiti and he denies that we are oppressing a weaker people. We think the country can afford to rely upon Mr. Hughes' assurances.

Right thinking Americans wish our foreign policy to be fair as well as practically conservative of our vital interests. It is undeniable that selfish influences may seek to make use of governmental agencies for their own profit and the want of timely publicity and consequently of the corrective of public opinion in the field of foreign relations make watchfulness by a disinterested organization of citizens desirable. But if this service is not to be discredit and counteracted it will keep in touch with realities and forego the pleasure so many of our reformers derive from vicarious altruism.

JUST AND REASONABLE WAGES."

Angered by the railroad labor board's acceptance of evidence from public organizations in connection with the wage controversy, B. M. Jewell, leader of the railroad workers, bolted the hearing with representatives of 2,000,000 rail employees. The action, he explains, was a protest against the policy of the board which a year ago admitted, as pertinent, evidence on the railroads' ability to pay certain wages, and which now admits evidence on the shippers' ability to pay certain rates.

"Congress established the labor board to fix 'just and reasonable' wages," he says. "The board has no authority to listen to evidence and to make its decisions on evidence which has nothing to do with what are 'just and reasonable' wages."

Such an argument almost leaves us gasping. What does the man mean? What are "just and reasonable" wages? Just, to whom? Reasonable, by what standard? Any disinterested judge or observer or arbitrator in the world, we believe, would declare that justice and reason in the fixing of wages must of necessity take into consideration the ability of the employer to pay as well as the capacity of a worker to earn. It should be obvious that a railroad with a total income of $1,000,000 a month cannot pay out $100,000 for supplies and $900,000 for wages and continue in business. It must provide something on investment. Even the worker would admit that if he had bought little stock with some of his savings.

Clearly the only way in which wages could be maintained would be to increase income by increasing rates. So justice and reason must admit evidence on rates, despite the Jewell contention. But higher rates may cut off business and reduce total income. So justice and reason must admit evidence on the ability of shippers to pay.

What, then, is a "just and reasonable wage"? It must be a wage which takes into consideration both the ability of the railroad to pay and the ability of the worker to earn. Justice and reason must seek an equitable division of whatever money is available. More than that they cannot hope to do.

There are two ends to the scale of justice. When one goes down the other must go up. Mr. Jewell ignores the balance. He puts an arbitrary contention into one pan, and apparently expects some astral influence to keep it level despite the facts weighing against it. It doesn't work that way. If a "just and reasonable" wage is really what he wants the most simple reasoning would require exactly the information which he refuses to accept. Without such information no wage decision can be anything but arbitrary, whether pay be cut in half or doubled.

SAMSON COULDN'T GET BY WITH IT.

Peggy Joyce's first thought in her present unhappiness was of Jack Dempsey. Mr. Dempsey was in Berlin when the telegram reached him. He was watching prize fighting ladies baste each other in the nose and ribs. He responded instantly to the appeal of beauty in distress, pausing only long enough at the ring to advise a pretty little fighter that if she imbedded her left in her heavier opponent's plexus she might slow her up. The pretty little lady knocked the heavier lady cold as Mr. Dempsey rushed to pack a suitcase.

We advised him to take the next boat home. It was already too late. He was speeding to the die-trap beauty who lunches on pearls and dines on diamonds. The forlorn Peggy says that life is a dead thing in her hands, but that possibly if she can make a film with Mr. Dempsey she may recover some of her girlish cheerfulness and also pick up a little change.

Samson is hurrying to the arms of Delilah and this, we fear, is good-night to a champion and a championship. He was a good man once, but he, who could scare a ring opponent by growing a three day beard, will be sent under the clippers and come out as a billiard ball.

Mr. Dempsey is going into the valley of Sorek where he'll be grinding in the prison house of Gaza bound in fetters of brass, and even Joe Beckett will be able to hit him a clip in the jaw. Call the next champion!

SPRING VANDALISM.

(Illinois State Register)

"I am a great lover of nature," says the person who comes in from a stroll or an automobile tour in the country laden down with the spoils of field and forest, in the form of wild flowers torn up by the roots or branches of flowering trees and shrubs. But why call that "love of nature"?

Such a person is just about as great a friend of nature as the one who wears a hat decorated with the wings or tail feathers of a murdered mother bird whose young starved to death in the nest to give the greed of the murderer or to please the vanity of the wearer.

This is the time of year when such "lovers" of nature are showing their love by robbing her of her choicest treasures and robbing future generations of seeing and enjoying these wonders of nature. It is a strange way of showing love.

And the people who do this crass, brutal damage to the thing they profess to love seem to think that by so doing they are giving an exhibition of superior esthetic culture, refinement, and virtue. The New York Times thus sums up the real truth in regard to this kind of vandalism:

"Instead of showing a delicacy of sentiment and a well developed esthetic sense, the wild flower pickers and buyers reveal that they are utter barbarians. They do not hate the blossoming plants, but the effect is exactly the same as if they did, for these frail products of rain and sun lack the fighting power of the so-called weeds, and if not allowed to live their highly specialized lives in the places that suit them, they give up in despair and vanish forever. Thus went the fringed gentian, and thus is going—is almost gone—the arbutus, or mayflower. The latter is eagerly bought by country born city folk as reminders of youth, but if they were wiser and more considerate they indignantly would refuse to foster a trade quite as vicious as that in the egret's nuptial plumes."

ON THE JOB.

Pretty Niece (blushing): "Auntie, what would you do if you learned that a young man was secretly inquiring about your ability as a cook?"

Wise Auntie: "I should immediately make secret inquiries as to his ability to provide things to cook, my dear."—Catholic Transcript.

SPRING HAS COME TO WASHINGTON.

Spring has come in Washington. But I'm not there to see the dancing waters, flecked with sun. The bloom of shrub and tree.

On the broad lawns of the White House The tall elm trees wrap their gaunt branches In a new drapey of misty green. The pink magnolia spreads wide its arms To make a canopy of gracious shade.

In the fair recesses of the Park Roll on the merry Creek—a dancing elf. Flinging with careless grace, Over its bare brown border of flat stones, A foamy scurf.

The white shaft of the Monument Sinks a shining shadow deep in the blue mirror Of the Basin. Along its marge The cherry trees have built A fairy tented world of radiant bloom, Strewing the ground beneath With their petals of dawn-flushed snow.

Spring has come in Washington. Thru jeweled mists I see Its gardens riot in the sun, Afame with ecstasy. VEV VEV.

HE'S GOT YOUR GOAT UP THERE, B. J.

R. H. L.: The caps over two of the stone bridge heads of the new Michigan avenue bridge are completed, and on each one are carved four goats' heads. Now, I think it is very kind and thoughtful of H. H. L. to pay such attention to the goats of Chicago. We are certainly the goats and our effigies stand in stone gazing contemplatively down on us as we hurry back and forth beneath them. I think this settles at once and forever the squabble over what name the bridge shall bear. From now on let it be "The Goats' Bridge."

SO THIS IS PARIS!

When you an' me was in Paris, several summers ago.

Every night, in the full of the moon, we'd hear the "Alerte" blow,

All of us in the cellar, nothin' on but a hat, Captain' maybe a gas-mask, and some o' us less than that.

Fritz was up in the Forest of Fere, forty kilos away.

Shillin' the place to a fare-you-well. Boy, there was hell to pay!

Everything covered with sandbags, all the Frogs sayin' "Flinny."

Eatin' just coffee and hard-tack, and often we didn't get any.

Wounded guys from the hospital, waitin' to catch a train.

Couple of hours to see the town, walkin' round in the rain.

Only two hours in Paris, with an M. P. standin' by. Slappin' 'em into St. Anne's hotel, in the twinklin' of an eye.

IT CERTAINLY SOUNDS REASONEABLE.

Whiting, Ind., April 20.—"To the Legal Friend of the People"—I purchased from a well known brokerage firm of New York ten shares of copper stock paying two-thirds cash and the balance in installments. The broker has been crediting my account with it. Now when I wish to make the last payment I find the brokerage firm is in the hands of a receiver. The receiver has accepted my check and tells me I will have to await court action. Will I lose these ten shares and my money, or do I stand a chance of recovering any of it?

You can trace your specific property among the assets, you can probably recover it in kind. Inquire of the receiver as to the facts and if favorable comply with his suggestions as to securing return. If your property has been sold, inquire of the receiver as to the proceeds mixed with the common fund, you will have to share equally with other claimants against that fund, in which case you should file with the referee of debt on a protest that the receiver has obtained a preference.

Martin agrees commonly authorise the broker to collect the collateral. Your rights to follow your specific property into the hand of third persons would depend on the broker's action and apparently authority, where the securities were "bearer" instruments, etc.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

THE FIRST STEP.

Chicago, April 21.—"To the Legal Friend of the People."—Will you kindly publish the name of the United States food commissioner in Washington? I have asked several people and consulted several references but I am not able to find the commissioner's name.

Mr. Stewart failed to study the twelfth and fourteenth chapters of Corinthians to say nothing of the beautiful chapter on charity, the thirteenth, which lies between them? Shad of St. Paul! For what purpose would there be given about 40 to 45 cents to the poor? Rev. Mr. Stewart (from Genoa) was "Oho!"

Quibbles!" declares Mr. Arthur.

Mr. Arthur shows an appalling ignorance of the New Testament when he claims that spirit communication is possible. Has Rev. Mr. Stewart failed to study the twelve and fourteenth chapters of Corinthians to say nothing of the beautiful chapter on charity, the thirteenth, which lies between them? Shad of St. Paul! For what purpose would there be given about 40 to 45 cents to the poor? Rev. Mr. Stewart (from Genoa) was "Oho!"

For the Russian peasantry, you state: "Bolshevism has destroyed about everything in Russia which can be destroyed, and with it has gone much of that inheritance of beauty which the people possess in the religious churches. They are now suddenly and terribly brought up. In one accord, on Sunday last, an eloquent Jesuit from Georgetown University, Rev. Josiah Sibley and Anna Ferry, Presbyterian, and Rev. J. Morrison Thomas, Congregationalist, not to mention Rev. George Craig Stewart, Methodist, all said that the Bolsheviks were an abomination.

It is hard to teach an old dog new tricks. But at the other end of the line—namely:

Most young children are cured.

It is hard to condemn corresponding work, because there are some very good courses by certain schools, and I myself, have complete two such courses.

It is certain, however, that there are some schools that use too flattering advertisements merely to get business.

BUT WHY TCHITCHERIN'S TESTIMONY?

CITY HALL GETS ANOTHER BLOW BY EMMERSON*New Committee Ticket Is Filed Too Late.*ELECTION WINNER

[Moffett Photo.]

Springfield, Ill., May 3.—Holding that the "new" city hall Republican county central committee of Cook county had not complied with the law, Secretary of State Emerson today refused to accept the certificate of nomination of Superior Judge signed by Charles L. Francis, committee chairman.

Mr. Emerson held that the call for the Cook county convention, at which no three judges were nominated, was filed within the time specified by law according to an opinion of Attorney General Brundage, and that therefore the convention was not regular, and the ticket nominated is not the regular Republican ticket of Cook county.

Only One Name Lacking.

The convention of the "old" committee, of which Homer G. Galpin is chairman, was held under a call issued within the time specified by the law and the nominees of this convention will therefore go on the ballot as the regular Republicans.

Both conventions nominated the five Democratic judges, William E. Sawyer, Marion M. Gridley, Charles A. McDonald, Joseph Sabato, and John J. McDonnell. The Galpin committee nominated Walter P. Steffel, Republican, while the Francis committee nominated Harry B. Miller, Republican.

One Run as Independent.

The only way in which the name of Miller can be placed on the ballot is as an independent by petition.

In his opinion to the secretary of state, Attorney General Brundage said that the law "requires that the chairman of the county central committee shall file in the office of the secretary of state the call for the convention at least seventy-five days prior to the date of the election."

The call signed by Mr. Francis was presented for filing thirty days late under this provision of the law.

Excursion Rates to Be 20% Less than Regular Fares

New York, May 3.—Excursion rates on American railroads this summer will be on an average of 20 per cent less than the present round trip fares. It was learned in railroad circles here today. Last year the average reduction under the round trip fare was 10 per cent. The new rates are effective May 15.

Washington, D. C., May 3.—The plan for reorganization of the government departments will be considered at a conference in the White House tomorrow night between President Harding, Walter F. Brown [O.] chairman, and members of the joint congressional committee on reorganization.

The conference will consider the tentative report on this subject, which has been in the hands of the President and his cabinet the last few weeks.

In the shooting of Tuesday of William B. Hubbard, germicide manufacturer in Chicago.

Next Monday morning when the Renters' Court, presided over by Municipal Judge George P. Brown, begins its grind, the stand-up court room sign will be hung on the court room door. Because of the large number of cases, ranging from 200 to 350 a day, the judge has ordered all except four of the benches in the court room moved out to make room for litigants.

Already 184 cases have been set for hearing Monday and it is estimated that the total called that day will be around 350.

Waukegan, Ill., May 8.—[Special.]—Jury material for the trial of Gov. Len Small ran out today and, with only eleven men in the box, three of whom are still subject to challenge, an adjournment until tomorrow morning was necessary.

The latest verdict of fifty, which brought the total drawn as prospective jurors up to 425, was exhausted about 3:30. Until half an hour earlier chances of completing the jury seemed excellent, but when the state used two peremptory challenges it was obvious the panel would not be filled until tomorrow. As a result it is probable State's Attorney Mortimer of Springfield will not make the opening statement of presentation of evidence by the state. The jury remained out only a few minutes. As soon as its verdict was returned many friends of Dr. Ramsay who had been attending the trial crowded about him with congratulations.

of Kankakee and the Grant Park Trust and Savings Bank, the two institutions controlled by the state. Small interests whose books have been sought in vain by the state and part of which are said to have been burned by a janitor.

The defense protested vigorously that the supplemental list could not be filed after the beginning of the selection of a jury, but Judge Claire C. Edwards ruled that it would be admitted for the present.

M. S. Killen, Former News Stand Owner, Dies at 72

M. L. Killen, 72, 4045 Ellis avenue, for many years owner of a news stand at East 41st street and Lake Park avenue, died yesterday from heart disease.

All told the state got rid of three peremptory challenges and one was served on the jury. When the day closed it was found that eight "moves" had been made in the "checker game" tendering "final" panels of four back and forth. At the finish August Nelson, a Libertyville carpenter, had been passed back and forth all the eight times; George Beckman, a Deerfield man, had been moved twice forward, and the third man, Lawrence Buss, a teamster of Hainesville, had been tendered by both sides as competent. That leaves them on the way to becoming jurors nine, ten and eleven and twelfth man to be selected from the new venire of seventy-five ordered for tomorrow.

The state now has only three of its ten peremptory challenges left, while the defense has six still unused.

Tens of Thousands of Jurors.

At the opening of court the state submitted a supplemental list of thirty-six witnesses it proposes to call during the trial. Among them are Leslie and "Bud" Small, sons of the governor, and the widow E. C. Curtis, who is said to have been the "brain" of the "Downstate Bank crowd." Most of the others are or have been employees of the First Trust and Savings bank

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunions tortured feet of yours in "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find pain gone from corns, calluses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous excretions which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

A few cents buy a box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel.

Statistics Say Four to One Against You

Unless you take proper precautions, the odds are four to one that you will contract Pyorrhcea before or after you pass the age of forty.

Something to think about, isn't it?

There are two things you can do: play the long shot and pay the probable penalty, or set about in a sensible manner to insure your teeth.

Pyorrhcea has cost many an individual his teeth and health. It starts with tender, bleeding gums. That is the danger signal you should be quick to heed.

Ignore it and Pyorrhcea does its deadly work in a hurry. The gums recede, the teeth loosen and drop out or must be pulled. Pus pockets form at the roots of the teeth and disease germs swarm throughout the system.

You must not let Pyorrhcea gain headway in your mouth. At the first warning, see your dentist and start using Forhan's For the Gums at once.

Forhan's For the Gums is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. S. If used consistently and in time it will prevent Pyorrhcea or check its course.

Don't wait a day longer. Stop at your druggist's at once, buy a tube of Forhan's and start using it today.

Brush your teeth with Forhan's regularly. It is an excellent dentifrice and will keep your teeth and mouth in perfect health.

Four out of five wait too long. Don't be one of them. 35c and 60c at all druggists.

PHYSICIAN ACCUSED OF STEALING AUTO IS FREED BY JURY

Dr. Blaine L. Ramsay, Austin physician, was acquitted yesterday of conspiracy to steal his own automobile, he having collected $4,700 in insurance. Judge Michael L. McKinley told the jury the state had failed to prove a case and it would be his duty to set aside any verdict except one of "not guilty."

The doctor made this statement at the conclusion of presentation of evidence by the state. The jury remained out only a few minutes.

As soon as its verdict was returned many friends of Dr. Ramsay who had been attending the trial crowded about him with congratulations.

of Rebecca Nelson, pretty young school teacher, in the cloakroom of her schoolhouse four miles west of Manly, was not accidental, as he first claimed.

Bonker admitted it was a letter from Miss Nelson in which she refused to go to a party with him tonight that caused him to go to the schoolhouse to "talk it over."

After shooting the girl, Bonker speeded to Manly in his automobile and made an unsuccessful attempt to hold up the Farmers' Savings bank, covering his tracks by shooting through the windows and scurrying to their homes. They said Bonker fired four shots after the first bullet had taken effect.

THREE POLICEMEN "FIRED."
For violations of police rules the police trial board recently ordered Martin M. O'Brien, South Clark street station, Patrick Morris, Maxwell street station, and John McGinnis, Burnside station, dismissed.

Always on the Job

MOST of the food in the cities is cooked with gas. Some of the heating and lighting is also done with gas. In Chicago, for example, over 90 per cent of the residences, hotels and restaurants are connected with the gas mains. This vast industry enters into the life of every one of us. It is never shut down because of slack trade or panic, but regardless of general business conditions is operated twenty-four hours a day every day in the year.

The rates are generally fixed by law, based on the cost of furnishing adequate service to the community plus a fair return to the company. Moreover it is practically a cash business. Because of the system of allowing discounts for prompt payment of bills and of shutting off service for non-payment the credit losses are almost nothing.

The stable character of this industry makes the bonds of well-managed gas companies, when properly safeguarded and passed upon by a responsible banking house, particularly satisfactory investments.

Bonds for Safe Investment—In common with all business institutions, the Harris Trust & Savings Bank is harmed directly or indirectly by unwise speculation and "wildcat" promotions. In a series of advertisements of which this is the Seventh, we are trying to picture to the public, out of an experience of 40 years, what we have found to be safe investments.

COUNCIL CREATES LICENSE BUREAU AND A $3,600 JOB

The city council created a new city department yesterday and decided to ask the voters whether the city should go more deeply in debt for new bridges and additional electric lights.

The new department, which will add a $3,600 job to Mayor Thompson's cabinet, is to be known as the license department and will have charge of the enforcement of all license ordinances under which the city collects about $4,500,000 in revenue annually.

The change was necessitated, according to Ald. Cermak, who introduced the ordinance, by Judge Rush's decision invalidating the city license bureau on the ground that its functions were executive and that they were being performed through the legislative branch of the city government.

Though Mayor Thompson said he had made no decision as to his appointee as superintendent of licenses, the new $3,600 job created, it is rumored that the place will go to Henry Wilson, a civil service employee who has been in charge of the now defunct license bureau.

The bond issue propositions, the aldermen decided, are to be placed on the ballot at the judicial election, June 1. One is for the issuance of $3,400,000 of bonds for the completion of the Roosevelt road viaduct, the Wells and Madison street bridges and the correction of the western approach of the new Adams street bridge so that the Union station project can proceed.

L. F. SWIFT JR. DRAWS $100 FINE AS "DISORDERLY"

After five continuances and five weeks' delay, Louis F. Swift Jr. of Lake Forest was found guilty of disorderly conduct and fined $100 yesterday by Justice of the Peace Max Witkower of Evanston. The charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated was dismissed at the request of the prosecution.

John Newhouse, 22 years old, 1606 Lake street, Evanston, was fined $10 yesterday for driving an automobile while intoxicated last Sunday. As Newhouse had no money Justice John T. Boyer sent him to jail. In the drift case two boys were injured as a result of his driving. In the Newhouse case a truck was damaged.

Witnesses Deny Intoxication.

Mr. Swift and his attorneys fought the disorderly conduct charge. Five witnesses testified they had seen Mr. Swift on March 26, before the automobile accident, and he was not intoxicated. They had seen him at McManus Temple and at a ball fight at the stockyards. Arthur Johnson, Evanston policeman, had testified that Mr. Swift was intoxicated when arrested.

"There is no doubt that Mr. Swift was guilty of disorderly conduct," said Justice Witkower. "One hundred dollars and costs."

"But your honor, our witnesses have shown that he was not drunk," said Swift's attorney.

"The court is not concerned whether he was drunk or not. He is guilty of disorderly conduct. Fine $100," said Justice.

Damage Settlement Out of Court.

Attorney M. A. Casper, representing the Bageman boy injured by Swift, and City Attorney Edward Markley joined a request to settle the second damage suit which was "driving an automobile while intoxicated." L. J. Bageman, the father, was in court. Attorney Casper said that a damage settlement had been reached out of court.

WIRELESS WILL CONTROL SHIP DURING 'BATTLE'

Atlantic Fleet Will Sink Old Iowa,

BY CHARLES SLOAN.

A battle on the high seas between the entire Atlantic fleet of Uncle Sam's navy and a "pirate warship" is to occur within the next few weeks, navy department officials announce.

The "enemy" ship will be the battleship Iowa. Some time this month the Iowa will sail out of its dock at the navy yard at Philadelphia and make for the Delaware estuary. It will be given twenty hours' start. Then the fleet, fresh from its winter training in Guantanamo bay, will be unleashed and sent in pursuit. When the Iowa is located—if it is—it will become the target of the entire squadron until it sinks beneath the waves.

The crew? There isn't any. Not a single human being will be on board. The reason? Radio.

For months the Iowa and the destroyer Dickerson have been undergoing refitting in the Philadelphia yards. Into the Iowa has gone the "last word" of the navy in radio reception devices; into the Dickerson the ultimate in transmission apparatus.

When the Iowa steams out into the ocean to meet its all armed fleet which, ship for ship, has no equal in the world, its every operation, from feeding oil into its fireboxes to blowing the whistle, will be directed by radio. It will be started, stopped, and steered by wireless messages sent by the Dickerson, many miles away.

Of course, the Iowa is doomed, for no single ship could hope to long stand the onslaughts of a fleet such as ours in the open sea. But, may be, before it sinks, demonstrate to the world the wonderful possibilities in radio direction of water and aerial torpedoes and other late inventions of naval radio experts.

Some time ago the Iowa demonstrated that it could find its way over the seas without a human being aboard it. At that time a sister ship, the Ohio, directed it. The success of this experiment decided the navy department on the new one.

And, due to radio, for the first time in history, the Atlantic fleet in peace times will have the opportunity to attack a battleship moving under its own steam at high speed.

Of course the Iowa won't fight back; its guns will be silent. But if it is sunk the ship will go down with flags flying—that's better than being stripped in a navy yard and then cast aside for junk, isn't it?

Another Lyon & Healy concert from K-Y-W tonight. Benson's orchestra will officiate.

Harold M. Leffingwell, 22 years old, 1010 North Pine street, Lansing, Mich., who has been blind since birth, recently passed the federal "first grade amateur" radio examinations with a mark of 93.

Flood stages of various rivers are being broadcast nightly by station WOK at Pine Bluff, Ark. The service is said to have saved several lives already.

The Bureau of Standards announces that plans for the new "electric light" machine, about which so many inquiries have been made, will not be ready for distribution for at least two months.

Radio inquiries should be sent to the Radio Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

FRANK HAMLIN, WIDELY KNOWN
ATTORNEY, DIES

Son of Lincoln's First Vice President.

Frank Hamlin, member of the law firm of Hamlin, Topliff & Cooper and master in chancery to Judge Charles M. Foell of the Superior court and for many years one of the best known attorneys in Cook county, died suddenly yesterday at his residence, 74 East Cedar street.

Death is thought to have been caused by heart failure. Mr. Hamlin had been under the care of physicians for more than a year, although his death came unexpectedly.

Son of Vice President.

Mr. Hamlin was born in Bangor, Me., Sept. 26, 1862, and was the youngest son of Hannibal Hamlin, who was vice president of the United States during President Lincoln's first term, and of Ellen Vesta (Emery) Hamlin, who is still living.

He was graduated from Harvard college in 1884 and from Boston university law school in 1888. He then came to Chicago and since 1892 has been actively engaged in the practice of law in Chicago. He was originally connected with the firm of Flower, Smith & Musgrave, and during his early days formed a close personal friendship with Frank O. Lowden, who was then in the office of Dexter, Herrick & Allen. In 1897 Mr. Hamlin entered a partnership with Byron Boyden. John Holland, now deceased, also was a member of this firm for several years.

Held Political Offices.

Mr. Hamlin was assistant corporation counsel of the city of Chicago, 1895-97; counsel for the Lincoln park board, 1901; attorney for civil service commission and the board of education in 1907.

Mr. Hamlin never married. For sixteen years he lived in a house at 820 Tower court. Two years ago he removed to 74 East Cedar street. For twenty-five years William W. Rathbone, president of the Kemler Lumber company, was his housemate. In addition to his wife, Mr. Hamlin is survived by a brother, Hannibal E. Hamlin, former attorney general of the state of Maine, residing in Ellsworth, Me.

Funeral services will be held Friday noon at Unity church and the body will be taken to Bangor, Me., for burial.

Are You a Hit-or-Misser?

THE results of printing are often damaged by the use of unsuitable paper.

We have a series of books on the subject of selecting the right paper intelligently, not hit-or-miss.

They are definite and instructive. They give the reasons and show the practice. They are interesting and they show how to get results.

Everybody who gets out printing should study the questionnaires that appear in each book, showing how to analyze a printing problem.

"Making It Easy to Plan Printing" is the title of the series. If you need these books, you can have them.

WEALTHY PACKER FACES JAIL FOR COURT CONTEMPT

Oscar F. Mayer, millionaire packer and head of Oscar F. Mayer & Brother Company, was summoned last night he will file suit today for $100,000 damages against Judge Franklin J. Stransky. Mr. Mayer declares that the jurist in characterizing Mayer's petition for a change of venue as "perjury" and assailing him publicly for using reprehensible methods to gain a point overstepped his official prerogatives.

What Opinion Was Based On. Questioning by the judge drew from Mr. Mayer the admission that he based his belief that prejudice existed because of the summary denial of a motion for continuance. Both Mr. Mayer and his counsel, George L. Schein, were severely denounced by Judge Stransky, who declared, "I know this affidavit to be a perjury" and intimated that he might hold the packer in contempt of court.

In sending the case to the chief justice for reassignment, Judge Stransky charged that Mr. Mayer and his attorney had "by means of a practice most reprehensible, gained your point—a continuance. I am surprised that men of your apparent standing would stoop to such methods."

Denies Judge's Charges.

In the statement read yesterday Mr. Mayer vigorously denied any attempt to gain a continuance by devious methods and reiterated his belief that Judge Stransky was unfitted to hear the case unbiased.

"From a consideration of the demeanor of the judge and the language used by him on the bench," reads the statement, "it is still of the opinion that the judge was not a fair-minded judicial person as he wanted to hear a case in which he was interested, and his former belief in the prejudice of the judge has been confirmed by his subsequent conduct and utterances. I attribute the action of Judge Stransky in announcing that perjury had been committed to the fact that he took the application for a change of venue as a personal affront and insult."

CHICAGO WOMAN GOES ON STAND AGAINST BURCH

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—[Special.]—Mrs. J. R. Childs of Evanston was a witness today in the trial of Arthur Courtney Burch charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy.

She testified she saw Burch entering Mrs. Evelyn Obenschain's home in Evanston carrying an arm load of groceries and that he came to see Madeline often.

Paul W. Schenck, Burch's attorney, on cross examination brought out the fact that Mrs. Childs is a sister of F. C. Neal, investigator employed by District Attorney Woolwine; that she had been brought here twice from Chicago in a drawing room, bringing her two children and a nurse, and that she has lived for some time in a $125 a month apartment at the expense of the state.

Howard J. Borts, who was in the Las Vegas jail with Burch, testified to the latter's nervousness.

Sheriff Sam Gay of Los Vegas told he was walking with a young woman, in the moonlight, beside the train that was to have taken him on to Chicago. Borts had made no protest.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Nolan said Burch agreed to go with him to Los Angeles, waiving extradition, and that "he kept like a baby" all the way back.

DIES OF AUTO INJURIES.

Henry Gibbin, 1136 George street, died yesterday from injuries while he suffered April 28, when he was struck by an automobile at West North and West Grand avenues.

Relatives Want Officers Who Shot Gordon Arrested

Unless the three policemen connected with the fatal shooting of Morris M. Gordon, war veteran and official of Gordon Bros' Iron and Metal company, are arrested immediately by the police of the West North avenue station, his relatives will ask State's Attorney Crowe and Coroner Hoffman to make an investigation. He was shot Monday night.

SHOT AFTER QUARREL.

Albert Baker, 1757 Warren avenue, was shot in the right knee last night following a quarrel with an unidentified man in front of 1907 West Madison street.

His friends made this test for him

Its result is a warning to everyone who buys paint for interior use

HE was about to repaint again. It was a question of dirty, graying walls—or "another coat."

On his desk were two wooden panels—one painted with a high-grade flat finish white paint, the other with Barreled Sunlight.

Passing friends picked them up and examined them.

At the end of several days they showed a startling difference.

The flat paint had collected every fingermark—every particle of dust and dirt. The board painted with Barreled Sunlight remained white and clean as when newly painted.

The reason is simple. The surface of all flat or egg-shell finish paint is full of countless invisible pores.

These microscopic holes catch the dirt and hold it. That is the reason walls and woodwork coated with ordinary white paint need repainting so often.

Barreled Sunlight is a white paint which produces a lustrous surface so smooth that it offers no lodging place for the tiny dust and dirt particles. Even if soiled after years of service it can be washed clean like tile.

That is why Barreled Sunlight is being used today in homes, hotels, office buildings, stores, industrial plants—for all interiors where light and cleanliness are desired.

Easy to apply. Flows freely and leaves no brush marks. Comes ready mixed in cans from half-pint to five-gallon size—barrels and half-barrels.

TRYSTER SPEEDS TO WIN FEATURE OF JAMAICA CARD

New York, May 3.—[Special]—In a terrific drive which lasted all through the stretch, Tryster, Harry Payne Whitney's gallant little son of Peter Pan, was returned the winner of the Faumonok, which featured the opening day's card at Jamaica today. It was a remarkable performance. The finish brought the 15,000 persons to their feet shouting encouragement to the rider.

Race Run in 1:12.5.

The six furlongs was covered in 1:11 2-5. Careful ran out in the last furlong and but for this might have won.

It was one of the closest finishes since the judges had to decide for some time. The first five horses were driving hard and it was a tossup which would last it out.

The start was good, but there was some rough riding before the field had settled in the stride. Tryster was perhaps the one to suffer the most. He was in next to the rail and unable to get out. Penman, however, never lost his head. He allowed Careful, Audacious, and Little Chief to make the pace. Meanwhile the boy kept Tryster well up, never losing any ground.

Alert Move by Penman.

At the turn into the stretch the opportunity came. The field, having a wide wide, found it a quick way to take advantage of it. He whipped Tryster up on the inside and he took the lead. The field swarmed about him, but Penman kept him going to win by a head. The pace was very fast. The fractional times were :22.4-5, :46 2-5, 1:11 2-5. The race was worth $4,650 to the winner.

The Suffolk selling stakes, one of the features of the day, resulted in an easy victory for the even money favorite, Sam H. Harris' True Flyer, with the Nevada Stock farm's Franklin second.

MORVICH DOES 3/4 MILE IN 1:12; ENDS PULLED UP

New York, May 3.—The unbeaten Morvich, a favorite for the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, was worked under colors before a capacity throng at the Jamaica track today, running three-quarters of a mile in 1:12 in an exhibition trial.

Jockey McAtee broke him at the six and one-half furlong pole, and at no stage was Morvich fully urged, flashing under the wire after being pulled up for the last half furlong.

He has past the stands and en his way to the winner's circle by a lead pony Morvich was cheered.

The fractions were: Eighth, 11:15;

quarter, :22 1-5; three-eighths, :34 5-6; half, :46 4-5; five-eighths, :58 3-5; three-quarters, 1:12.

CENTRAL A. A. U. TITLE MEET FOR DETROIT AUG. 19

The Central A. A. U. outdoor track and field championships will be held in Detroit Aug. 19, according to an announcement made yesterday by Frank A. Martin, official handicapper of the athletic association. Taking the championships away from Chicago means that the Central A. A. Success of Drake Relays AIDS Teams with Expenses

Des Moines, Ia., May 3.—The major part of the expenses of all teams competing in the Drake relays here last Saturday were paid by the University of Drake, said L. A. Stagg, director of the meet, announced yesterday following a partial check on the financial end of the relays. Because of the financial success of the meet, Drake will be enabled to pay a larger proportion of the expenses of all teams than had been anticipated.

RAY MAY MEET WATSON AGAIN

Joe Ray, the Illinois Athlete club miler, who was beaten by two yards by Ray Watson, formerly of the Kansas Aggies, in a special match race at the Drake relays last Saturday may meet his conqueror in a return race in connection with the University of Illinois meet at Urbana June 27. A. A. Stagg, director of athletics at the university, today extended an invitation to these runners to meet in a return engagement. Stagg plans to give a trophy to the winner.

Toluca Sprinter to Run in Maroon Meet May 27

Toluca, Ill., May 3.—[Special]—Jóe Dicenzo of this city will be one of the field of international stars entered in the annual meet to be held by the University of Chicago, May 27. The local boy, whose specialty is the 100 yard dash, was credited with covering the distance in 9:45 last Saturday, in the annual high school meet conducted by Bradley Institute at Peoria. Dicenzo also is a crack performer in the 220 yard race, and in the broad jump.

Maroons Re-elect Blinks as Captain in Swimming

Edward P. Blinks, one of the stars of the Western conference swimming team, last night was relected captain of the University of Chicago swimming team for next year. The election took place at the annual banquet. Livingston Hall was chosen leader of the water basketball team which won the "Big Ten" championship this year.

Glove Fans Flood Mails with Choices for Dempsey's Rival

New York, May 3.—[Special]—Negotiations for a Jack Dempsey-Jess Willard bout to be held in Richmond, Jersey City, on or about Labor day are progressing favorably and a definite signing of articles is likely when Dempsey returns to this country.

Richard notified Willard today that no definite steps would be taken to close the contract until Dempsey returns, but that a cable had been sent the champion, assuring him he would defend his title against Willard.

ARE the fans interested in the next opponent for Jack Dempsey?

We will say they are, and we say it with much confidence, because the vote that is coming in from the fans interested. The question was put to the fans by THE TRIBUNE only two days ago, and up to the present writing the sporting editor's mail has been clogged with votes.

The first tabulation of the vote cast will be printed on Sunday. In the meantime, the fans are urged to get in their choices as early as possible, so that they will be in the list.

Willard in Running.

Not only are the fans voting, but they are writing in giving reasons for the way they vote. At the present writing the three big giants of the world—Willard, Dempsey and Tex Rickard—are leading in the balloting.

KNOX NINE WEAK IN PINCH; NEEDS FIELDING DRILL

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Although defeated by Lombard last Tuesday, 10 to 3, in one of the most important baseball games on the schedules of both teams, Capt. Tom Crabbe and his Knox teammates are hopeful of reversing the decision when the two teams meet next Tuesday on the Knox field in Galesburg. Ill.

It looks as though Uncle Sam has as much chance as a rabbit in a lion's cage.

The ancient scale from putting up an interesting game.

School Rivalry Keen.

The Knox boys, however, were responsible for their defeat and had no reason to offer after the contest good sportsmanship exists between the two colleges, despite the intense rivalry. The players do not resort to any tactics not covered by the rules, but they play the game for all it's worth.

Sam Barry is athletic director at Knox and about as good an all around coach as there is in the minor colleges in the middle west. In fact, his ability and basketball lines is so well recognized by members of the Big Ten that he is being considered for a basketball berth at a certain western conference institution at the present time.

The director has found his duties sufficient to occupy all his time, and the development of the baseball team was turned over to C. L. McFerren, who played fine games in the Three Eyes and Illinois-Michigan leagues. McFerren apparently knows baseball, but his players fail to carry out his ideas.

Must Learn to Slide.

In spots the Knox kids did not take enough time when fielding hard hit balls, while there was absolutely no excuse for stealing bases when Knox was even runs behind. The players must also learn to slide when trying to get or double to increase hits.

In looking at college baseball games it cannot be too severe in criticism. College boys can go through the mechanical angles of the game in a pleasing manner, but must have time to think out plays of the advanced or intricate order. Experience alone does this.

Tom Crabbe, who plays center field, is captain of the Knox team and a player who probably could make any other team in the country. He fields and bunts well and is wanted by the Minors club of the Three Eyes league.

Bennie, but Shows Promise.

Johnson is the leadoff man and plays shortstop. Johnson appears to be a good baseball man, but is a little erratic. He permitted Lombard to start its fifth inning rally by throwing the ball into the stand when Blake hit sharply down his way. Johnson fielded the ball cleanly and had a world of time to make an accurate throw.

Dwight Murphy did all that could be expected of him at first base. He made two hits in four times up.

William Fitzpatrick caught a nice game and looked good at the plate. He sing the ball safely on two occasions. He has a perfect throw to the bases. Eddie Morrison accepted two chances in left field, but did not get a hit in his five times at bat. Clyde Campbell had two costly errors at second base and did not score a hit, although he batted the first time at bat. Wallace Christopher took two chances in right field without criticism.

Lange, Griggs Hit Hard.

Raymond Lange, a right hander, started to pitch but was taken out in the fifth inning after five safe blows had been made off his benders.

Gerald Griggs, who followed him, also got himself in the hole frequently and lay the ball in the groove, where the Lombard players generally cracked it.

MANITOWOC, WIS., TEACHER, HIT BY BEAN BALL, DIES

He died about an hour after the close of the game. Schmeler, who was batting, muffed a fast curve and the ball hit him in the left temple.

There is always much joy among the movie fans (feminine especially) when a Tom Moore release comes into sight, "ambles" being used advisedly, for Mr. Moore's appearances seem a long time coming around. His Irish smiles are too few and far between for those who like him, and their name is legion.

You've seen him as a chauffeur; as a waiter; as a man of the masses and as an actor; all alone and in a crust. Now, as Mr. Barnes you behold him a genial trooper of the righteous whose journeys lead him to strange lands and involve him in strange adventures. These prove not so hard to take as they might have been, by reason of two beautiful women who are irrevocably involved with him. One of these is an English girl, played by Naomi Childers. On occasion at the Adams End and Mr. Barnes becomes a man of one idea. End is it. He pursues her doggedly, humorously, merrily, sorrowfully. She cannot lose him.

He ignores her coldness. He is transported with delight when she smiles. When she is jealous he throws his hat to the heavens and knows that life can no more bring him for. Conceivably his happiness will be his salvation set in both wings of a wing his brother from death and straightening out various little matters of vendetta and the heart so that the aforementioned adored brother may be able to marry and live in peace and happiness forever after with the luscious dark lady of his heart!

If you don't like the picture for any other reason, you will adore it because the people are funny, funny clothes, methods of the period, countenance they certainly do look odd. Becoming? Well, to Miss Childers and Miss Lehr. I can say, however, that I think they greatly set off Mr. Moore's manly beauty. Anyhow you'll enjoy him in them—as I imagine he did himself, for

by Connie Lowe

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)— Brighten up the corner where you are—this seems to be the message of the spring millinery. Red and rust hats—these are having a tremendous vogue both here and in Paris, and certainly nothing else offers such a foil to the gray and beige and navy blue costumes now so highly favored. Another important item is the trimming of millinery confections with trimming on the hat in some tone employed in the trimming of the frock or suit. Still another has to do with the smart uses of matching scarf and hat.

Flowers of all kinds are having a tremendous vogue. These, however, do not exclude a deep preoccupation with straw. We illustrate this in the model at the right—a parti-colored straw the crown of which is formed by wide matching ribbon. As so many of the new hats are wont to do, this one slashes its brim in order to admit the big side bow of ribbon.

Below this model is a poke shape in either red or rust color straw which achieves variety, by a brim of braided straw.

Below a charming afternoon or luncheon hat is found in black ribbon bound with tulle.

Charles adores his father, and the minute he leaves he is out looking for him. At noon one day, not seeing him coming up the street, his eyes filled with tears and he came slowly back into the house.

His mother said: "Why, dear, what's the matter?"

His reply was: "O, nothing, mother. My eyes are just sweatin'—just sweatin'."

Doris Blake Says:

TODAY IS A LUCKY DAY FOR THE STEADFAST.

The ruling figure of today is the sun in square with Neptune. Mercury and Venus are not in good aspect, so consequently you are urged today to pursue beaten paths and to remain steadfast to the policies which you have found to work out to your greater benefit heretofore. Those in employ are urged to be particularly loyal to their duty if they would insure prosperity ahead. If your birthday is to-day you live in the realms of your sensations and emotions. Your treatment of people depends on your mood, which is something you must learn to control as is the most successful people are those who are able to put others at ease on meeting. You are, however, loyal. Children born on this day should be quite successful in life, particularly in public employment. The female child will be the object of serious love intrigues.

Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a young fellow for about six months. He has been nice to me until lately since he takes more interest in me. I want to go with other fellows, and I know he goes with other girls. Do you think I should still bother with him?

Wedding Rings of Gold and Platinum

OF carved green gold or platinum, the Wedding Rings of today possess a quality which is distinctly decorative. They are very slender, too, and suggest a certain delicate and exquisite character. Some are carved with tiny wreaths and sprigs of orange blossoms. Those made of green gold are $9 and $12, and those of platinum $25 and $34.

South, Wabash Avenue

Fine Humidors $7.50 to $125

ROSEWOOD, mahogany and Circassian walnut are the woods from which these Humidors were made. The smaller ones hold twenty-five cigars, and the very large ones, with bronze ornamentations, will contain five hundred. (They would make admirable gifts to the groom.)

Middle, Wabash Avenue

Desk Clocks of Unusual Design

IN slender, graceful frames, with rich dials and thoroughly fine movements, these Clocks make the passing of time a very fascinating sort of pageant. Some are in mahogany and plain dials, $40. In silver, they are $70 and $75.

A WEDDING GIFT is perhaps the most important sort of present we are ever called upon to choose, for it demands, quite naturally, a quality which shall be worthy of expressing the sincerest esteem. And so it has come about through these many centuries that Silver has grown to be accepted as the most admirable tribute to put before a bride.

It seems, in some stately way, to symbolize the dignity and permanence of her new-established household, to bring to it a sense of richness and security. And therefore we feel a certain pride in giving it.

In the Silver Room there are services and separate pieces which would please the most careful connoisseur. Their surfaces are plain, marteled, etched or engraved.

A New Memorandum Index Very Conveniently Arranged

IT is both a calendar and an efficient card index which will remind its owner of all his engagements and plans. There is a small drawer beneath for the storing of extra cards and memorandums.

And perhaps its most pleasing characteristic is the attractiveness of its appearance, for it would grace the top of the most perfectly ordered desk. With a Celtic design in antique iron, gold, silver and bronze finishes, it is priced at $18.

The Woman He Forgot
By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

SYNOPSIS.

Nora Clayton, beautiful and young, although the mother of a nineteen year old son, returns to England after an exile of seventeen years, when she learns her son Bill is in love with Lady Helen Margaret, a woman years older than he. Nora's real name is Helen Thorpe. She was married when extremely young to Lucien Thorpe, whom she loved sincerely, although he who loved Nora, often tricked by Helen, who loved him, and his Captain, Mathilde, who loved Nora, often believed him to be a scoundrel. When her two year old child he cast her out of his house. Shortly after she and the child were in a railway accident, and she allowed her husband and friends to believe they had been killed.

The day she reaches England Nora meets her husband, who is no longer blind, at the station. Her friend, Fanny Flute, Lucien does not recognize her. He and Bill are estranged.

Nora and her son quarrel about Helen, whom he has already married, but Helen, who now gets an allowance from her divorced husband would never let the marriage be known, and Bill to keep it secret even from his mother. Lucien discovers it and tells Helen he knows.

Lucien becomes a frequent visitor at Nora's flat in London. She is not yet ready to forgive him, and to tell him who she is, but she finds she is happy with him again. She has her lovely singing voice, by means of which she supports her child and herself. She is back, and is compelled to find other means of earning a living. Through a newspaper advertisement she is taken on as music publishing company, which is owned by Peter Margaret, Helen's ex-husband. Bill is greatly disturbed when he hears the news. He insists upon leaving London and going to work. Lucien takes him into his business.

Sam Pawlak, Lucien's associate in business, and boyhood friend, is curious about the secret in Lucien's life. Nora Clayton, finds a way to see her, and discovers she is the Helen, to whose memory he has been loyal all these years.

INSTALLMENT XXVIII.

"WHY NOT FORGIVE AND FORGET?"

Downstairs in the old English room a handful of poets congregated to critique the feeling and intelligence of their time.

The drawing room where Helen, wearing a Persian costume of costly brocade, sat enthroned was an ever shifting scene of strange people. It was a cosmopolitan gathering, brothers and sisters under the common banner of the united arts and occult sciences. An Indian mystic and a young American actress discussed religion with the enthusiasm which only a few brand of faith can inspire.

The dining room was set with little tables and a huge buffet, and from half past nine, when the guests began to arrive, until the small hours, when the last of them had left, it was never empty. Certain hungry people even required thimble before they troubled to pay their respects to the hostess.

Bill discovered one of these early in the evening, and was a little puzzled as to the man's status. There is a saying that "once a gentleman always a gentleman," so it may be that the big, coarsely handsome man in a shabby evening suit, which looked as though it had been hired, and never been otherwise than what he was now, a decidedly dubious individual. No doubt many of the others were dubious, but not quite the same way. They had roles to play.

Bill, who had cut short his dinner in order to be early, found this man already in the dining room when he went down for a hurried sandwich. At that time, not more than half a dozen of the celebrities had arrived, and none as yet had sought material refreshment.

The big man sat at one of the little tables with a bottle of champagne in an ice pall beside him, and an assortment of viands before him which included the best of the entire supper menu. Two hours later he was still there.

Bill, who had gone down the second time to fetch a cup of coffee for Helen, managed to claim her attention for a moment upon his return.

"Oh," she said, with the faintest touch of annoyance, "that must be Capt. Fairchild. It's quite all right, Billy. He was invited. But do, like a dear boy, take care of him. Don't let him overdo the champagne." An old friend, dear. I met him by accident the other day, and he seized him on the spur of the moment. Keep him away from me if you can. He's rather a bore."

The evening was destined ever afterwards to be recalled with horror by Bill, and from the fall beginning to the ignominious end he had misgivings. He was so tired of all tired of the brilliant talk which tended to become cheap and meaningless, with the intense eyes who were surprised to find that they did not mean a special pet of their hostess.

Helen sat Helen up against these men, and somehow they made her look as small as themselves. They were not big, but not really great—only shams and imitations driven by egotism to make a noise in the hall at costs and in total disregard of the peace of their neighbors.

Bill was possessed of a finicky sort of fastidiousness. When the tenor who was to be slapped Helen on the back and gave her a kiss as a prelude to asking her to play his accompaniment, Bill felt not so much fury at the youth's familiarity as disgust with the woman who permitted it.

The party reached its height by 2 o'clock. A few hungry souls who had been merely for food, had satisfied themselves and departed. The really famous names had gone long ago. He was a business man at heart, and providing entertainment for an audience which was attentive only here and there was decidedly out of his line. Some of the poets had gone and so had the Japanese artist.

But the priests of the new faith, the old man who believed in a hollow universe, and others of that ilk remained on. So did Capt. Fairchild.

The whole house swam in cigarette smoke, but the policeman had discovered a box of cigars, which he generously offered to share with Bill. By this time he had taken a short cut from champagne to brandy. Bill began to wonder how they would get him out of the house. One couldn't say that what he had done had affected him to any perceptible extent, but one knew instinctively that he had gone far too much.

As Bill hovered around, Fairchild began to think himself an object of complimentary attention and grew attached to his admirer. His eyes watered and he stumbled into that fatal pitfall of the sentimental drunkard, reminiscence.

"Faith, an' you remind me of a felly I used to know when I was young and dashing like yourself. He was a blind man, and he had the sweetest wife in the world. God rest her soul. 'Twas a dirty trick I played on him—and the lady of this house we're sittin' in now, you an' me so friendly like, together. How many years ago would that be? O, before you were born, I think. She was a pretty young thing, was Ody Helen, in those days, when she first ran into Bill's life. They were to be a big innocent slab, as Shea afterward described him.

Many Indicted.

Others arrested and indicted for conspiracy were Albert R. Parsons, August Spies, Samuel Fielden, Oscar Nebe, Adolph Fischer, Louis Lingg, George Engel, and Michael Schwab. All were found guilty. Spies, Schwab, Fielden, Parsons, Lingg, Engel, and Fischer were sentenced to death, Nebe to life imprisonment for fifteen years imprisonment.

"It's getting rather late," said Bill, who believed that he was dealing with a more or less harmless lunatic. "Shall we be going? I'd be glad to drive you home."

"That's uncommonly kind of you. Presently, presently. First I had thought to tell you about this man that you're the spittin' image of and the way he tricked on you. 'Twas I and the woman upstairs who sent the nurse with our infant child to the doctor, Dr. Thomas, in the city. Dr. Thomas, he's a very good man, and he's a very good doctor."

Bill hesitated. "There's something inscrutable in the doctor's story, which must be in every tale which weaves the power of grim truth. Fairchild did not spare himself, but neither did he spare Helen. Perhaps he had forgotten that the young man to whom he poured out those confidences was peculiarly interested in Helen. He was carried away entirely by the retrospective of his own sin and mental suffering.

As Bill hovered around, Fairchild began to think himself an object of complimentary attention and grew attached to his admirer. His eyes watered and he stumbled into that fatal pitfall of the sentimental drunkard, reminiscence.

"Faith, an' you remind me of a felly I used to know when I was young and dashing like yourself. He was a blind man, and he had the sweetest wife in the world. God rest her soul. 'Twas a dirty trick I played on him—and the lady of this house we're sittin' in now, you an' me so friendly like, together. How many years ago would that be? O, before you were born, I think. Spies, Schwab, Fielden, Parsons, Lingg, Engel, and Fischer were sentenced to death, Nebe to life imprisonment for fifteen years imprisonment.

After many delays the day of execution was set for Nov. 11, 1887. Gov. Oglesby commuted the death sentence of Fielden and Schwab to life imprisonment. Lingg committed suicide in his cell by biting a fulminating cap which blew his head off. Parsons, Spies, Fischer, and Engel died on the gallows.

Found Later.

Five or six years later Schnaubelt was located by the Chicago police at Vallejo, Cal., but before the San Francisco police could arrest him he fled to Honduras. He afterward died.

The Haymarket Veterans, an association formed in 1898 by the survivors, meet annually on the anniversary and recount their experiences the night of the bomb throwing. Only a few are left to tell the story.

Capt. Fairchild staggered to his feet and let fall a fervent exclamation. He looked both sick and silly.

The newcomer, who had a red face and eyes of baby blue, threw a contemptuous glance at Bill which said more plainly than words, "Insignifican' pup," thrust the stock of his whip under one arm, and pulled off his heavy gloves, stuffing them into a pocket.

"Well, Mr. Margenty, here I am. On my job—sitting up all night at it."

Fairchild said with a feeble attempt at carrying off the delicate situation.

"Yes, I see you are. It's thoughtful of her ladyship to invite you inside. I should out doors. I thought something like this was happening. Now I give you one, two, three to get out."

Margenty unlimbed his whip. He stood too near the door for the faithless master's taste.

"Sure, I know I'm fired and I'll not argue that I don't deserve it."

"One," said Margenty.

"But in the morning it's the damning report I'd've turned in to ye."

"Two," said Margenty.

The captain bolted for the door and passed through it on the word "three," together with a smart crack of the whip.

"That's him," Peter said, looking hard at Bill Clayton, who returned his master's measure and with more dislike. "What about you, young man?"

"Well, what about me?" Bill drawled. "And if it comes to that, what about you?"

"You're Clayton, aren't you?"

"That is my name."

"Well, why ain't you home and abed? Lofafer, I guess. I know your mother. She ain't no loafer."

"From what I gather, no one in your employ would get much chance to work for you."

"Bill," Bill said insolently. "I hope you don't think I approve of my mother's ways."

Margenty threw back his head and laughed raucously.

HAYMARKET RIOT
TOOK PLACE 36
YEARS AGO TODAY

Anniversary Observed by Veterans' Group.

BY JOHN KELLEY.

Memories of the Haymarket riot, in which eight policemen lost their lives and more than three score were wounded by a dynamite bomb thrown into their midst, will today be revived in every police station in the city, it being the thirty-sixth anniversary of the bomb throwing in old Haymarket square.

The day—May 4—is also the anniversary of another noted event in the city's criminal history. On this day thirty-three years ago Dr. Patrick Cronin was lured from his office in the Windsor Theater block, North Clark and Division streets, and slain. His body, deposited in a manhole in Evans-ton avenue (now Broadway), near Foster avenue, was not discovered for nearly two weeks.

But the Haymarket riot is of particular interest to Chicago policemen as a great and sinister event of police history.

Mob Gathers.

A few seconds before the death-dealing dynamite was hurled by an anarchist malot, Capt. "Billy" Ward had ordered a mob of 10,000 persons who were listening to incendiary speeches to disperse. Rudolph Schnaubelt, a "red," stood in an alley a short distance north of where the meeting was being held. Under his coat was concealed the bomb, loaded with dynamite and scrap iron. It was 10 o'clock at night.

Two hundred policemen who had run upon the meeting halted at Randolph and Desplaines streets. Capt. Ward had just spoken the words: "In the name of the state of Illinois I command you to disperse," when he was hit by the bomb. The explosion was heard by all the mob, with its lighted fuse, was thrown from the alley.

Many Wounded.

Constitution followed in the ranks of the police. More than a score of men were thrown to the ground, some of them mortally wounded. Several of the mob drew revolvers and began firing at the officers.

Capt. Ward, who miraculously escaped injury, gave the order to "close up" to Capt. John Bonfield, who was in charge of the police, shouting, "Draw your guns, men, and give it to them." This was supplemented by Capt. John E. Fitzpatrick, a man of military training, who rushed to the front and ordered the blues to "close up, form into line and charge."

He confessed taking $500, according to Meisterheim, and said the ward workers had failed to pay him back. Charles Appel, owner of the North Side Turner hall, has offered to repay the $500, it was said.

Pashel was found in the home of Frederick Woodcock, 18 West Chestnut street, a deputy clerk in the Municipal court. According to Jailer Lawrence Meisterheim, Pashel claimed he took the prison money to defray campaign expenses in the Twenty-first ward during the election.

He confessed taking $500, according to Meisterheim, and said the ward workers had failed to pay him back. Charles Appel, owner of the North Side Turner hall, has offered to repay the $500, it was said.

Pashel said that he went to St. Louis last Saturday in the hope of borrowing enough money to make good the shortage," said Mr. Meisterheim.

"When he arrived he was shocked to find that his father had just died, so he came back."

Guns Emptied.

The police emptied their guns and reloaded them as fast as they could. It was estimated that at least 100 of the mob were armed. There was a rain of bullets, and when the smoke of battle cleared away the police were the victors.

The casualties of the anarchists were not known, but many secret funerals were held during the week that followed.

The only policeman who died of his wounds that night was Mathias Degan. The others who succumbed to their wounds were George Mueller, Neil Hansen, Timothy Sullivan, John J. Barrett, Michael Sheehan, Thomas Redden, and Timothy Flavin. Subscriptions were taken up and $60,995 was given to the families of those who lost their lives.

Hyman, who threw the bomb, was arrested the following day, but was released by Chief of Detectives John D. Shea, because he appeared to be a "big innocent slab," as Shea afterward described him.

Many Indicted.

Others arrested and indicted for conspiracy were Albert R. Parsons, August Spies, Samuel Fielden, Oscar Nebe, Adolph Fischer, Louis Lingg, George Engel, and Michael Schwab. All were found guilty. Spies, Schwab, Fielden, Parsons, Lingg, Engel, and Fischer were sentenced to death, Nebe to life imprisonment for fifteen years imprisonment.

After many delays the day of execution was set for Nov. 11, 1887. Gov. Oglesby commuted the death sentence of Fielden and Schwab to life imprisonment. Lingg committed suicide in his cell by biting a fulminating cap which blew his head off. Parsons, Spies, Fischer, and Engel died on the gallows.

Found Later.

Five or six years later Schnaubelt was located by the Chicago police at Vallejo, Cal., but before the San Francisco police could arrest him he fled to Honduras. He afterward died.

The Haymarket Veterans, an association formed in 1898 by the survivors, meet annually on the anniversary and recount their experiences the night of the bomb throwing. Only a few are left to tell the story.

Capt. Fairchild staggered to his feet and let fall a fervent exclamation.

He looked both sick and silly.

The newcomer, who had a red face and eyes of baby blue, threw a contemptuous glance at Bill which said more plainly than words, "Insignifican' pup," thrust the stock of his whip under one arm, and pulled off his heavy gloves, stuffing them into a pocket.

"Well, Mr. Margenty, here I am. On my job—sitting up all night at it."

Fairchild said with a feeble attempt at carrying off the delicate situation.

"Yes, I see you are. It's thoughtful of her ladyship to invite you inside. I should out doors. I thought something like this was happening. Now I give you one, two, three to get out."

Margenty unlimbed his whip. He stood too near the door for the faithless master's taste.

"Sure, I know I'm fired and I'll not argue that I don't deserve it."

"One," said Margenty.

"But in the morning it's the damning report I'd've turned in to ye."

"Two," said Margenty.

The captain bolted for the door and passed through it on the word "three," together with a smart crack of the whip.

"That's him," Peter said, looking hard at Bill Clayton

COMMITTEE HITS LEADERS; VOTES WAR DEALS QUIZ

Regulars Hope to Prevent Inquiry Into Contracts.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Washington, D. C., May 3.—[Special.]—Ignoring the wishes of the administration, the house rules committee, by a vote of 6 to 5, today ordered a favorable report on the Woodruff-Johnson resolution for suspending investigation of the failure of the department of justice to prosecute war contract frauds.

Indications are that the resolution will precipitate a bitter fight on the floor of the house, and administration "regulars" still have hopes of defeating it. In the rules committee three Republicans—Campbell (Kan.), Johnson (N. Y.) and Moore (Okla.) and with three Democrats—Pou (N. C.), Garrett (Tenn.) and Cantrell (Ky.)—in favor of the resolution, while the other Republicans, Snell (N. Y.), Rodenberg (Ind.), Fess (Ohio), Kreidler (Pa.), and Dale (Vt.) voted solidly against it.

Daugherty Fought Quiz.

When the resolution was first proposed Senator Weeks and Attorney General Daugherty went before the rules committee and advised against an investigation on the ground that it might reveal information of value to those involved in the frauds.

Today letters from both Mr. Weeks and Mr. Daugherty to Chairman Campbell were made public. Mr. Weeks stated that he did not oppose the resolution, adding that "a number of the members of the department, some 150,000 in number, are being made as rapidly as funds at the disposal of the department permit, and I believe the best and speediest action in these matters may be obtained in this way."

Mr. Daugherty wrote that he did not oppose the investigation and said he would cooperate with the committee on inquiry.

Following the committee's vote an effort was made later in the day to have the action reconsidered. Johnson rallied his supporters, however, and blocked reconsideration.

Defend Attorney General.

The survivors, based on the floor when Representative O'Brien (Ill.) chairman of the committee which investigated war expenditures, defended the action of Mr. Daugherty in dismissing department of justice employees who gave Johnson and "Woodruff" information about the failure to prosecute contract frauds.

Mr. Graham declared Maj. Watt, one of the most conspicuous of the recalled investigators, had "no just cause for complaint."

Simultaneously in the senate another acrid debate broke loose with the attorney general as the chief target. Senator Caraway (Ark.) Democrat, who charged yesterday that Mr. Daugherty had received a $25,000 fee for getting Charles W. Morse out of the Atlantic penitentiary during the Taft administration, renewed his bombardment.

"The attorney general has fired all the honest inspectors in his department who have called his attention to the swindlers that he did not want to prosecute," Mr. Caraway said. "He has put back into office the physician who helped to get a fraudulent pardon for Morse."

Senator Caraway then said that T. R. Felder, formerly of Atlanta, had come to him and admitted giving and wanted to take the blame for having obtained the Morse pardon. Felder, he said, "rushed" into his office and "evidently came from the attorney general."

Mr. Caraway asked Senator Watson [Ga.] if he knew Felder.

"Mr. President," Senator Watson said, "for the last forty years I have known him to be a crook. I know him to have been a professional lobby-ist for the whisky ring."

"I am asserting a fact in saying that he is not a lawyer but a lobbyist, not an honest man but a crook, not a witness whom anybody would believe unless he was a member of the Senate. He would be impeached if offered as a witness upon a trial by men of high standing and character, who would say that from their general knowledge of him and his character they would not believe him on oath."

"I think myself," Senator Caraway said, "he is very likely a very worthy representative of the man whose offenses he wanted to assume."

One hundred and forty-two soldier memorial trees will be planted May 27 on Giles avenue between 31st and 39th streets. The name of Forest avenue has been changed to Giles avenue in memory of Lieut. George L. Giles, colonel, the only officer of the 8th infantry killed in the world war.

The memorial trees will be planted as a tribute to Lieut. Giles and the 142 enlisted men of the regiment who lost their lives in the world war.

A bronze tablet bearing all the names of regiment members who died in France will be placed at the northwest corner of the 8th regiment armory, 3517 Giles avenue.

A new high top for the year was established on aged woolen lamb yesterday when best reached $16.45. Choice shorn lambs cashed at $14.90, with values in general ruling strong to 25¢ higher. The reason for the upturn was the small supply of 8,000, which was 5,000 below expectations and smaller than trade requirements. No California shippers arrived; natives sold at $16.00-$16.25. Wethers brought $16.10, fall shorn ewes $7.50, and freshly shorn $8.75.

Starting in week 10c lower, yesterday's day's hog market closed strong with most of the loss regained. Receipts of 17,000 were short of expectations and with shipping orders absorbing a third of the arrivals some of the local packers had to get in to keep them packed. Salesmen held some of the market. Day's top at $10.50 and the general average at $10.10 equaled low day in April.

Last Cattle Trade Is Best.

General demand for cattle yesterday was urgent and, while some early sales showed 10@15c decline, the market finished on a comparatively strong footing, with few left unsold and late sales about equal to the previous day, thus conditions applying to practically all grades. Heavy and yearling steers were $10.00.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

Scattered losses in May wheat are getting out and the market is erratic. A number of the big houses had May to sell yesterday and at one time had 1,000 bu. to stop at $1.45 carrying the price to $1.42½. The lowest of the day. Within a short time the price was back to $1.45 buying a little offering. There is no real market for wheat on delivery here and in other markets. Deliveries at Chicago yesterday were 180,000 bu. while at Minot there were 250,000 bu. No. 2 wheat, which were paid at 95¢ per bushel, and H. is under the impression that it will be moved out. At Winnipeg they were $63,000 bu. paid for largely by Chicago houses. Armour and Jackson are credited with taking the greater part of late.

Sentiment of the grain trade at the last was rather more friendly to buying as well as some in the local operators as well as in the grain elevators. The situation on breaks is a little increased in the outside buying is also reported.

Harley-Wishrop say: "We feel that the general situation in the market indicates higher prices."

A seaboard exporter who has been buying for two years now finds the buying side of corn is still there, but there is a call from exporters and that corn is disappearing. A local cash buyer says there has never been so much corn moved with so little price paid during the last few weeks. The other has seen some movement in the east of late fearing what would set out in condition and have taken a loss on it. Exporters have consigned the corn abroad and taken a loss. In a word, it is a most peculiar situation."

Beef steers were steady to strong and other classes 25¢ higher at leading centers. Receipts and averages:
